ESTIMATE OF COLEMAN'S STRENGTH.

W. D. English's Popularity—Pond's Chances—Something About Coleman—Morrow.

[WRITTEN FOR THE TRIBUNE.]

It ought to be an easy matter to determine the number of votes each candidate for Governor will have in the Democratic convention, for the delegations elected up to date are very open in expressing their preference. But so slight an expression of friendship is construed into a positive assurance of support, that one finds very often all the candidates relying on the same votes, which is manifestly absurd, for no delegate can serve two candidates. Either he will stick to the one and throw off on the other, or he will vote for a dark horse.

I managed to get a look at the estimate of strength made by Coleman's friends the other day, and I rather think it will be interesting reading. It is in no sense official, nor is it based on any absolute claim made by Mr. Coleman, but represents the result of his friends' inquiries about support up to date. Here is the list.

Alameda	7
Amador	4
Butte	5
Calaveras	8
Del Norte	1
Fresno	5
Humboldt	2
Kern	5
Lake	2
Los Angeles	35
Mariposa	4
Mendocino	11
Merced	6
Nevada	8
Orange	1
Placer	3
Sacramento	4
San Diego	17
San Francisco	10
San Joaquin	15
San Luis Obispo	9
San Mateo	6
Santa Clara	21
Santa Cruz	5
Stanislaus	6
Tulare	14
Tuolumne	7
Ventura	6
Total	224

I am inclined to think that Mr. Coleman's friends err about Alameda county, which delegation, so far as I have been able to learn, will go solid for "Bill" English. That is only natural. "Bill" is a good fellow, a hard party worker, always ready to do a man a good turn, and one of the simplest minded and most honest men in the world. He has done party service since 1879 and has never yet received a political reward commensurate with his labors. So if Coleman finds that his expectations of support from Alameda are not realized he must not be surprised.

What are known as the mining counties will naturally support Coleman. He is a miner and has a great deal of money invested in that business. He runs a large mine in Calaveras, at Angel's Camp, where he works a large force of men.

His strength in Butte is purely personal and he may get some of Colusa's eleven votes, which Pond thinks are his. Colusa is a hard county for any man to handle. The bitter fight in the Legislature for and against division which ranged Boggs and his friends on one side and the Glenns and Willows people on the other makes any harmony in the delegation impossible. The division was only beaten by a veto, and both sides will want a pledge from the candidates for or against division. If Boggs can give Pond half the delegation it will be as much as he has any right to expect to be able to handle. There was some money spent in the Glenn county fight by both sides, and the subscribers are certain to vote as they put up. Boggs lost strength by being charged with having promised to both sides, and it is not likely that he has gained control of the county.

In Fresno, Coleman's strength is owing to local causes, as well as personal friendship. He owns an interest in a vineyard down there and has many friends in the county. Will Ashe is one of his many supporters, and has helped him in Merced, where the Ashes run a fine ranch. In Los Angeles many of White's friends are for Coleman, and he has a warm supporter in J. De Barth Shorb, who controls the San Gabriel ranch in which Coleman owns an interest—or rather he owns in the San Gabriel Wine Company, which handles the product of the ranch. San Francisco will give Coleman about ten votes at the start. He has the Grand Sachem of the Iroquois Club, and the braves, who are the pick of the young Democracy, are sure to send ten Coleman delegates to the convention. They may be able to do even better than that, for they are the most active and influential workers in town, but it is pretty hard to get independent delegates in San Francisco, where Buckley runs the Democracy as a close corporation. It is pretty hard to tell how Buckley's votes will go, but, I believe, they will be found in Coleman's camp when the last ballot is taken, and, if his friends do not grossly overestimate his strength in the country, Buckley will have no excuse for going against the wishes of the young men of San Francisco, who want Coleman. By young men I do not mean the toughs, but well educated, smart, active fellows like Jim Flynn, Larry Welch, and Ross Jackson—men who are in politics, but do not resort to rough work.

Pond's friends, and they are many, affect to believe that Buckley will not dare to vote against Pond, who will have a great deal of solid strength in the interior. They say that it will be another case of Bartlett, but it does not seem reasonable that mere opposition to Buckley will make the Governor's running. Pond would make a good Governor. He is a clean, straight man of some ability, but he is not great, and he is not popular in the sense that Coleman and English are. Both of these gentlemen have hundreds of friends, who will work for them as a labor of love, who will be loyal and true, and ask no reward for their services, while it would be hard to find any number of men tied up to Pond by personal feeling. The State is hopelessly Republican, and if the Democrats want to win they must put up a man with a personal following, for there is no issue on which they can make a fight that will do them any good.

An interesting feature of the contest is the large number of men you meet who say "If it were not for English I'd be out for Coleman, and if it were not for Coleman I'd be out for English." The friends of one are the friends of both, and either would have a sure thing of the nomination were it not for the other. You can find men by the dozen who are warm friends of both, and who say that they will have to keep out of the fight until one or the other drops out. I am confident that if both were beaten by an outside man, their mutual friends would not feel like making a very warm campaign for the successful candidate.

I have heard the question asked "why should Coleman be a candidate; what right has he to expect that California should honor him?"

The answer is that he has no right to expect it, and there is no special reason why he should be a candidate. But there are a good many reasons why the State should try and get him nominated, if possible, and they apply with equal force to Pond and English. It is always possible for the Democrats to win, if not probable, and if we must have a Democratic Governor, an intelligent gentleman, with candor, courage, and business capacity, is preferable to the other kind. California needs a good Governor more than anything else. She has been plundered by placemen, injured by idiots, and mismanaged by demagogues long enough. Her laws are in a chaotic state, her finances muddled, and government progression is unknown. Her taxes are high and wastefully used, her party leaders mere self-seekers, and State patriotism is almost dead. The great mass of the people have as little to do with governing the State as the peasants have with managing the affairs of Russia. The power of public opinion vanishes ten seconds after the election returns are in. The State needs a good executive head, and cannot afford to pay a man to leave his business to attend to the work. Steve White, the ideal Democrat, said he could not afford to work for the State for the pittance paid the Governor. We want a man at Sacramento who will let everyone know he is bossing the job the second he sticks his feet under the Governor's desk. We need a man of brains, prowess, capacity, firmness, honesty, and courage. In short, we need a man who could get about $50,000 a year managing any large general business, and we only offer him a mere fraction of that sum. Now, here is a man, 40 years of age, independent as to means, well bred, and well mannered; also, knows the world, loves the State, and is willing to camp at Sacramento for four years and straighten things out, so I say, as the State must take the chance of having a Democrat, she should be glad to see such a man nominated. Coleman was educated as a lawyer and passed the Supreme Court. He taught school for a time, went to the mines, kept books, ran a big ranch, served a couple of terms in the Legislature very creditably, and having demonstrated his fitness to command, offers his services.

We are always complaining that State affairs go awry because the "better element," whatever that is, does not seek office, and here is an educated, capable man offering his services. He is not old, but he is as old as Oliver Cromwell was when he took a notion to reform public affairs in England and Cromwell was quite a success as a reformer. He is not likely to veto any bills for pay, sell pardons, appoint rogues to office or do any dirty acts. He will not be under obligations to scoundrels, for his friends are disinterested and honorable. He is not the sort of man who would consent to a State gerrymander, or use the influence of his office for dishonest politics. He might give San Francisco a decent Board of Health, and if he had to appoint a Registrar he would put in a man who could be trusted to count fairly.

It will, of course, be objected to him that he has money enough to lead an idle life if he chooses, but it is inconceivable that any sensible man should object on that score. If he has all the money he needs he is not likely to have any that belongs to the State. There is a proposition as old as the hills. Josephus, in his Antiquities of the Jews, tells of a delegation that went to Cæsar, urging him to depose a governor who had grown rich. Cæsar told them how he had met a beggar that day who was covered with flies, and thinking the poor man too weak to drive them away, had sent a soldier to dislodge them.

"Leave them alone," said the beggar angrily. "They have had all of my blood they want. If you drive them away there will be room for a lot of hungry ones."

Pond is just such a man as Coleman in the matter of capacity and fitness, but lacks the power that Coleman has to inspire friendship, and English has the good qualities of both of them.

The Republican candidates — well there is but one to be taken seriously. His name is Morrow, and if he is nominated he will be elected by not less than 7000 majority. But there is no proof at hand that the Republicans will not repeat the mistakes of Estee and Swift and put up some old war horse, who has a thousand enemies and a hundred friends. The party has shown a preference lately for promoting men who had been retired after defeat, and it may continue the practice in the State Convention. The party has lots of men who could be beaten if they ran for Governor.

SATAN'S SOFT SNAP

How the Summer Exodus Sends Souls to Prison.

A QUESTION ON THE BURDEN OF SIN.

Shooting Boxes of the Sybarites—The Story of Nearsighted Archie Gunter and the Gun.

[WRITTEN FOR THE TRIBUNE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 20th.

I suppose that old Jack Satan puts his plethoric paunch with more genuine satisfaction at this season of the year than at any other. "Now is the time to plant sinners," he writes to the Sulphur Farmers' Companion and Broilers' News. For if there is one time when the decalogue is remembered less than another, it is during the summer exodus. The wife out of town is a temptation from which all virtuous souls should fervently pray: "Please, Lord, deliver us, and lead us not in the path of the stay-out-at-nighter."

The social substratum is noisy with the operations of lone husbands delving for a good time. They fill the front rows of the Baldwin, watching the twinkle of the St. John legs. That woman should have been called Herodias, for she has many a bald head as a trophy, and all on account of her twinkling extremities. The neglected husband is upon the street in droves. He casts sly glances and lifts his hat to women whom he doesn't know. He lingers until late in the rear rooms of Goby's and Pop Sullivan's, seeking whom he may be devoured by. He is at the Cliff, in carriages, and he drinks wash-haul to the dawn.

But what of madame? Is she more sinned against than sinning? That question deserves to be ranked with the other famous interrogatory of the year, Is marriage a failure? It admits of a wide difference of opinion. The autumn records of the divorce courts do not answer, for the list of plaintiffs is generally about equally divided as between the sexes. My lady is at the springs or seashore, shocking and being shocked. My lord is wandering in the dim realm, and leaving footprints on the borderland between the world of propriety and the world of sin—the half world, where the fallen angels are. They will meet in a few weeks—and befool each other if they can.

My friend James R—— has been married three years. His wife is demure, winsome, and picturesque. He is one of those men whom women take to. She went to Santa Cruz a few weeks ago. He immediately blew off into the unknowable. He bounced up against the town and caught himself as he bounced back. I rather commiserated his wife until I had occasion to go down to that city by the sea myself. Then I rather commiserated Jim.

She was just as demure, just as winsome as ever. She had a bewitching bathing suit, and a figure that caused men to wait for her until she rose from the sea. Time and again, at all sort of hours, she took a plunge—but always with the same escort. This was a strange, tall, eccentric man, with sandy hair and mustache, and those fateful blue eyes that never seem to be looking at anything in particular. I met the two driving together by night along the bluffs.

Then, by a strange contretemps, one of those awful blunders was made which occur at rare intervals, and I was no longer left in any kind of doubt, not even the most charitable, as to the summertime love of Jim's demure wife and the man with the far-away eyes. The situation was embarrassing, bloodcurdling. She evidently took me for a cad, for she tearfully begged me not to tell. He looked as if he might shoot, but he didn't.

I came back to the city on the same train with the wife. Jim was at the depot, cold sober for the first time in weeks. She was full of anticipation as we approached the town. She tripped from the train with a merry swing. Jim caught her before she left the last step, and they fell upon each other's necks. He was overflowing with protestations of his happiness. She actually wept for joy upon his shoulder.

It may have been the clacking of the harness of the buck horses, but I thought I heard the de'il laugh.

At last California is to have a genuine sporting club—two clubs for that matter. One hundred men of an out-door turn have joined together, formed a hunting and fishing club, and secured a magnificent preserve. It is on the line of the Donahue road, seven miles from Ukiah. They have leased 8,000 acres for a term of 20 years, and this 8,000 controls 8,000 more, so they have 16,000 acres in the preserve to all intents and purposes. Each member pays $100 a year dues, and a fee of $5 every time he introduces a friend to the sportive delights of the place.

The club has already nearly completed a fine clubhouse, after the manner of the shooting boxes of the Eastern states — broad verandahs, great open fireplaces, comfortable rooms, a readable library, comprehensive cuisine, and all the little conveniences which tend to make a country sojourn a delight. They have constructed a fine road from Ukiah, have cut trails to the best streams and hunting grounds, and secured gamekeepers who understand their business.

The section of country is a natural preserve, and is already one of the best quail and deer regions in the State, with the possibility of a bear now and then to keep timid sportsmen hustling. But the sportsmen are not content with letting well enough alone. They will husband their resources, so far as the heroic game is concerned. Then they will add to the other game so that there may be a pleasing variety of sport. Bob White quail have been imported from the East, and the last China steamer brought over a large consignment of Mongolian pheasants. These latter are magnificent birds, and they increase with astonishing rapidity. In Oregon they were protected by law after their introduction, and have already multiplied until the farmers complain of them as a nuisance. On the Ukiah preserve are four or five trout streams, and John Fisher, the pioneer baseball player, has been engaged in hatching trout and stocking those streams for some time. It is intended to have some sort of hunting or fishing all the year round, and the sport will be kept up o' nights. This latter diversion might, possibly, be called drawing the game, for the elusive "ante" and the aspiring "raise" will be diligently brought to pot.

The other sporting club consists of a small clique from the inner precincts of the Pacific-Union Club. I don't think there are more than forty or fifty members in it, but these forty or fifty represent a nice pot of money, and they have secured, I understand, the magnificent Shafter ranch, near Olema, Marin county, as a preserve. The intention is to build a country clubhouse, stock it as well as the preserve, and make a spot where life can grow in tropic luxuriance. A finer place could not be found. Deer abound, smaller game runs in the covers, and, in addition to good trout streams, there are several shallow ponds which afford excellent duckshooting during the winter months.

It was in one of these ponds that Paine J. Shafter and Archibald Clevering Gunter shot Forrest Wiley. Both shooters are wofully near-sighted, and both persistently refused to wear glasses in the days of their youth. Wiley was on one side of the pond and the two short-sighted men on the other. He winged a duck and, taking off his coat, waded out into the shallow water in pursuit. The blind-eyed sports on the other side took him for a sandhill crane, up guns, pulled triggers, and both simultaneously filled his legs with duckshot. It was a very good shot for near-sighted men, and it nearly brought Wiley to bag.

He lay down and writhed, coloring the water with his blood. The two marksmen heard his cries and finally fumbled to what they had done. Then their penance began. Wiley could not walk, and it was five miles to a house. Shafter and Gunter made "a chair" and carried their bleeding victim over ridge and through canyon, until, when they reached the house, it was a question which of the three was nearest dead. Wiley recovered, but afterward went mad. I don't know whether or not his madness was the result of being leaded by those half-blind men, but the experience was not conducive to mental calm.

Years ago Vane lost both arms in a railroad accident, and, as he could not use the artificial arms with which he was supplied, he hit on a novel way of making a living. A country tailor made him a heavy sack-coat with three canvas pockets in it, one in the back and one on either side. Each pocket was divided into four compartments, and every morning Mr. Vane put into them eight bottles of rye and four of bourbon, in all, six quarts of alleged "real old stuff." Then he would start off and sell his wares to farm hands and laborers. These would take their smiles and drop a dime into a small cash pocket. Mr. Vane had a partner, Dr. Pape Rea, who filled the bottles every morning. The authorities arrested the two venders at Cumberland, Md., on Friday. They pleaded not guilty.

Sir Edwin Arnold's Literary Pack Mule.

STRANGE INTELLECTUAL COOKERY

An Imitator Who Falls Short—"An Epic of Christianity," Which Is Not Epic at all.

[WRITTEN FOR THE TRIBUNE.]

I was amused the other day by the publication, in a San Francisco paper, of what might be called "a first-class notice" of Sir Edwin Arnold's forthcoming 60,000 line epic, of which I presume Christ is to be the hero, as we are told that it is concerned with what the critic calls "true Christianity," and, as the advance agent tells us, "grapples" with the apparent inconsistencies of that form of belief. I have not the advantage of having ever before heard the name of this advance agent, who signs himself Douglas Sladen, but it is very clear that he has built his style on the lines of what he would probably call "The Master," until he has succeeded in producing a very fair and sincere copy of the faults of that style.

Twenty-five years ago, when Edwin Arnold was writing editorials for the London Telegraph, Matthew Arnold—who was not even Edwin's brother, much less Edwin himself, as the editor of the Omaha World once insisted—was in the habit of poking fun at what he liked to call "the roaring of the young lions of the Daily Telegraph." The main characteristics of that style at which Matthew Arnold laughed were its gorgeous coloring and its affectation of omniscience continually advertised by recondite allusions to classical or Asiatic or the Lord knows what sort of literature. I cannot better illustrate my idea than by a quotation from the letter of Sir Edwin's literary pack mule, published the other day:

Like all other European writers who are human, he has confessed the charms of the Musume, with her clear brown cheeks full of roses and her mouth made to be taught the foreign (to Japanese) exercise of kisses, and he has professed himself an admirer of modern lacquer—I mean Japanese institutions.

The allusion to Musume is all right, but the copyist falls down when he explains what he means by "lacquer." Sir Edwin would never have done that. He would have gone on to explain that he meant something, and have left his readers to wonder that any one should know so much they did not know.

The advance agent goes on to speak of "the Ben-Hur-like brilliance of Palestine coloring which has been simmering in Sir Edwin's brain for twelve whole years," and here he strikes another note of this extraordinary style. That noble image of Palestine coloring simmering in the back part of the Master's mental stove "for twelve whole years" is an example of intellectual cookery which has no parallel in the literature of metaphor. Sir Edwin's editorial articles had the same brilliance as this promised Palestine soup, and no doubt would have made excellent blank verse of the Arnold sort were they sawed up into lengths.

Of course, these brilliant simmerings will be first published in America—that accounts for the notice—and the reason given for this choice is quite as singular as the gentleman's metaphors. He explains, that in England the epic would only address itself to "the literary ten thousand." Now, this is exactly the class in which Sir Edwin's work has never gained acceptance. He is widely read among the people who confound fine writing with good poetry, but nothing more. His "Light of Asia" is very delightful reading, but it does not rank as a great poem. I do not doubt that his forthcoming epic will be even more popular, more especially as the advance agent tells us it "grapples"—delightful word—with the inconsistencies of Christianity. It is hardly necessary to explain, however, that this is not an epic at all, but merely a didactic treatise, so printed that it may partake of the beauties of the work of the poet in The School for Scandal, where "a neat rivelet of verse meanders through a broad meadow of margin." That is blank verse of one sort.

Now, of course, it is possible that Sir Edwin may have written a great poem with a purpose—not an epic, because that is merely the recital of heroic deeds in heroic verse without an afterthought of teaching, such as the advance agent promises. That it will be a highly successful work I am certain, for the reason that it will partake of the characteristics which made "Robert Elsmere" so widely read. Nothing pays so well nowadays as an attempt to reconcile the inconsistencies of modern Christianity with the Christianity of Christ, and it is very clear to me that even if Sir Edwin's great grapple with the difficulties is not very successful, it will at least be highly profitable. Hear the advance agent:

An epic of Christianity! To what end? Sir Edwin might reply: "I, a Buddhist, brought up in the tenets of Christianity, have unusual opportunities for observing the *un*essence Christianity. This poem attempts to convert Christians to true Christianity. If this were Christianity, then almost persuadest me to be a Christian."

No doubt Sir Edwin is almost persuaded to be a Christian by the beauty of the great precept:

"Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal; but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal; for where your treasure is, there will your heart be also."

That no doubt supplies the reason why Sir Edwin prefers an American copyright, which opens, as the advance agent candidly explains, the widest and most profitable market for his intellectual simmerings. Nevertheless, the disgusting, literary puffery and the blatant hypocrisy of the advance agent savor more of the circus and the log show than of genius, and make the judicious doubt.

The poem, with a purpose, reminds me of a new form of literary industry, which is thus described, with unconscious humor, by the Rev. Joseph Cook:

A blessed Boston lady, Mrs. Joseph Cook by name, was audacious enough to omit a few words here and there in Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar," and so adapted it to her favorite tune Rialto. I had no part in this hazardous business. Of course no one thinks the subtle measures of the original improved by the omissions. But the majestic poem can be sung in its altered form. Already I have heard of it's being so used at Wellesley College and at Abbott Andover Female Seminary and at two funerals, and always to the inspiring Rialto.

I feel certain that Sir Edwin's religio-philosophical poem will have many passages fit to be sung at a funeral without being sawed off by Mrs. Jo. Cook.

MRS. PERKINS'S ARM BROKEN.

An Injury to a Bride While She Is on Her Wedding Tour.

San Jose Mercury, June 19th.

Yesterday afternoon, a pleasure party, consisting of Lieutenant and Mrs. C. M. Perkins and Miss M. Sheehey of San Francisco, with Miss Spence of this city, accompanied by Dan Murphy and Miss Sullivan of San Francisco, drove out to Agnews, to visit the asylum there.

The first four were in a dogcart, driven by Miss Spence. On their return from the asylum, shortly after turning into the main road to Santa Clara, the horse became frightened by the sight of a forkful of hay, pitched by a farmer who was loading his wagon near the railroad. As the road is very narrow, and a large portion of it was taken up by the wagon, the cart went into the ditch alongside the road, upsetting it and throwing the occupants to the ground. Miss Spence and Colonel Perkins were, fortunately, uninjured, but Miss Sheehey had her face badly bruised, while Mrs. Perkins was severely hurt about the left shoulder.

Some gentlemen who were passing at the time went to the assistance of the party and extricated them from their perilous position. Dr. Hatch and Dr. Pratt of the asylum were summoned, and Mrs. Perkins was conveyed to the residence of Dr. Hatch, a short distance from the asylum buildings. An investigation by the doctors showed that Mrs. Perkins's collarbone had been broken, and she was in great pain. The injury is the more unfortunate as Mrs. Perkins has but recently been married and is now on her wedding tour, she and her husband making a stop in this city as the guests of E. R. Spence.

Mrs. Perkins was formerly Miss Ora Whitley of Suisun.

London Pleads Guilty and Is Pardoned.

The Board of Fire and Police Commissioners held a special meeting yesterday afternoon to investigate the charges preferred by Chief of Police Tompkins against Special Officer London.

London admitted that he had been absent from his beat on three consecutive occasions during the festival of the Turn Verein. On one of the three nights he was sick, and had so reported at police headquarters. He had not notified the Chief of his absence from the beat, but was satisfied that the Chief and Captain Fletcher had full knowledge of the fact. The other two nights he was hired by the Turners. He has been in the habit of so absenting himself during several years past, always, however, with the consent of his patrons, and he did not know he was doing any harm. In conclusion, he stated that his beat was accounted the poorest in the city, and if it was not for the fact that he was paid to attend picnics and parties he would not be able to keep flour in the barrel.

After hearing Mr. London's statement Chief Tompkins said he had no desire to further prosecute the charges, and the officer was excused on condition that he would not repeat the infraction.

Nashions may decay and dimesties inter to their fol, continents may sink into the billers and be lost to the antiquity for ever, and mountins may be wore away by the whinds of heven, but the dog is a great convalsion of nature wich we have all ways with us for to bites us unaware. From the icy rejions of the north, were the rib-nose galoot glorys in his pride cos he can eat blubber, to the steening seas with lies beneath the equumpsial line, dogs is the same too day and too morrow and last week, from everlasting to everlasting, a men, without change or shadder of turning, partickler the snap dog, wich is the wunder of the world! From Siskyou to Sandy Dago he prevades the rellums of space, and as the Spanish maden retches the lite gittar, so he lifts the yuman tendons up with his teeths and lets them go again with a bang wich makes the heveus be mute. His voice is herd their rolling drums, but his bite beats it a mile a minit, and the feller he pricks his ears up and says, 'I hear the piping of the clans.'"

But wot Uncle Ned ment by ol that rigmy role is wot flores me, and Billy he says it flores him same way, but Jack Bruly he can lick Dutch.

One time Uncle Ned, wich has ben in Injy and every were, he was in Madagigasker, and it was Sunday and he is a good man, and so he sard, "I will go to church."

So he went and seen about five thowsen hunderd natif niggers wich was adoring a big idle, and Uncle Ned he lay down on the stumack of his belly, jest like they did, and knocked his hed agin the growud real pious. But bime by he looked up out of his eyes and he see his big yelow stump tail bul dog had follered him to church and was mity interested in wot was goin on. The bul dog he looked at the natif nigs, and then he looked at the idle, wich was ofle ugly. The idle is set on a big block, and there was a other block jest like it, but no idle on it. After the bul dog had inked a vile he shuke his hed real wise and went and jumped on the uther, and set down on his hunches, and smiled, and wunk his eye, much as to say, "Wurship me."

Bime by the king of the natif niggers he cum over and ketched Uncle Ned, wich hadent see wot the bul dog done, and said, the King did, "Look here, you contwisted hippocrit, I have ben mity nice to you, and give you a dozen whives, and made you a duke, and let you wear a peeox fether, and havent threw up yure color to you, nor et you, nor nothing, cos you sand you was a king in yure own country yure self, but there cant be only but jest one kind of religin in this land, and if you dont take that gum dasted god of yourn out of this realum He be jumboozled if I dont cut of his ears!"

But if I was heethen and dident kno a bul dog wen I seen one I wude rather be a Demerat, like Mister John P. Irish, wich can make a speach with his mowth and hands and be applodet for his eloquent, but the tom cat is the feller for me, cos man is a few days and ful of trubble.

My father he says one time in Iowa Mister Irish he was a makin a stump speach, and there was a jackuss, and every time wich Mister Irish said any thing the jackuss it spoke up too and brade fritefull. Mister Irish he got mad, and he said, Mister Irish did, "Free speach is the corner stone of our libbeties, tho some times it is mity roughf hewed, but one at a time is a jewel, and if our Republican feller citizen thinks he knows more a bout the politickle ishews of this campain than I do my own self, jest let him come ford to the platform, like a man, and He have it out with him if it takes of my leg."

Just then a bad boy, wich had untide the jackuss, he put a bur under the jackuses tail, and it run thru the crowd a kicking like its hart was broke, and heden strait for the platform, and Mister Irish he dident stay for to have it out, but jumped down and prolonged hiself a cros the country like a black streek. Wile he was a flushing past 2 ole farmers, one of them he was a stonish, and he said, "Wots that?" The other ole farmer he looked up too, and then he said, "Them dum Democrats is gerry manderin this State, and that is the new boundary line of this Congressional district."

And thats wy I say that dogs is bitter than the sord, but the sebry is the king of beests!

ALL FOR ENGLISH.

This County Seems Yielded to Her Candidate.

NO OPPOSITION IN THE WARD CLUBS.

Neither Pond Nor Coleman Men Make Any Showing at the First Meeting of the Clubs.

The Democrats organized their clubs last evening, preparatory to the meeting on Tuesday evening next, when delegates will be selected to a county convention, whose duty it will be to elect delegates to the State convention at San Jose. The clubs were formed in the city without trouble. There was no opposition, and the elections passed off quietly. There was a large attendance at all of the meetings, and the supporters of W. D. English, as candidate for Governor, were placed in the club offices, indicating that there will be no fight against English in this county, at least, at present.

The purpose of Mr. English's friends in calling a convention to select delegates from this county was to send a united delegation, lustily cheering for English. Had delegates to the State Convention been selected by direct primary the delegation from this county might have been divided, as there is an element of the Alameda county Democracy, led by M. F. Tarpey, favorable to the nomination of James V. Coleman.

Following is the result of club meetings:

First Ward.

The Democrats of the First ward organized at 1461 Seventh street. James Neylan called the club to order, and S. B. McKee was elected chairman and James B. Mackie Secretary. The club adjourned, to meet Monday at 1461 Seventh street, when the club roll will be open for further signatures.

The northern precincts organized on Hannah street, with Fred. Maurer as President, and Archie Bryant as Secretary.

The Second Ward.

The Second Ward Democrats elected Michael White President and John Rice Secretary, and adjourned until Monday night when the club roll will be opened.

The Third Ward.

There was a large assemblage of Third Ward Democrats at 1105 Broadway. J. J. White was elected President and M. J. Laymance Secretary. These two officers will have the club roll at their places of business, where good Democrats may sign. The club will meet Wednesday night, at the same place, as last evening.

The Fourth Ward.

There were two clubs organized in the Fourth Ward, last evening. The first and second precincts organized at 863 Washington street. The officers elected were: President, T. J. Callaghan; Vice-President, Dr. E. J. Overend; Secretary, Captain Harry Levy; Treasurer, J. L. McCarthy. The club roll will be kept open until Wednesday evening, at 9 o'clock.

The Third and Fourth precincts formed one club. They met at 974 Seventh street, and perfected an organization by electing James Elliott President, J. F. Parker Secretary, and T. J. Brady Treasurer. Forty signed the club roll, which will be open every evening at the same place from 7 to 9 P. M. up to next Wednesday evening.

The Fifth Ward.

The Fifth Ward, the home of W. D. English, organized a club with Charles McCleverty as President, and John F. Connors Secretary. The club roll will be found at Cleary's grocery store, near Webster street.

The Sixth Ward.

Everything was harmonious in the Sixth ward, though not all the Democrats appeared. J. Coveney was elected chairman and W. F. Gilligan Secretary, and the club roll will be found at Mrs. Kelly's office, 417 Seventh street, every evening until Wednesday. A committee consisting of Messrs. Brosnahan, McGuire and Bachrach was appointed to report a ticket of fourteen delegates next Thursday at the primaries. The primaries will be held Thursday and the Sixth ward polling place will be F. W. Hunt's store, 403 Eighth street, Galindo Hotel building.

The Seventh Ward.

The Democrats of the Seventh ward organized with the following officers: President, Judge A. M. Rosborough; Vice-President, James Doolan; Secretary, Andrew Hampel; Treasurer, W. C. Price.

W. C. Price will have the club roll in possession and a committee of three, consisting of E. J. Rodgers, W. Morris and J. T. Fonte, were appointed to canvass the ward to obtain signatures.

Alameda.

The Alameda Democrats elected a large board of officers when they organized last evening. The club is called the Democratic Central Club of the City of Alameda. The following officers were elected: J. T. Fleming, President; Fred K. Krauth Jr., Secretary; Vice-Presidents—Oswald Lovett, First precinct; C. A. Brown, Second precinct; J. T. Rossiter, Third precinct; Michael Kane, Fourth precinct; W. W. Goggin, Fifth precinct; E. P. Peckham, Honorary Vice-President; Nick Beckman, Treasurer.

Temescal.

The Temescal Democrats were very enthusiastic, and called themselves the W. D. English Democratic Club. Mr. Tucker was elected chairman and Mr. Collins secretary. They will meet again Tuesday evening.

ABOUT MAIL MATTER.

The Postmaster's Advice and Suggestions to the Public.

The Postmaster has issued the following letter of admonition and information:

Special Delivery—Any article of mailable matter bearing a 10 cent special delivery stamp in addition to the lawful postage, is entitled to immediate delivery on its arrival at the office of address, between the hours of 7 A. M. and 11 P. M., if the office be of the free-delivery class, and between the hours of 7 A. M. and 7 P. M., if the office be other than a free-delivery office.

To entitle such a letter to immediate delivery, however, the residence or place of business of the addressee must be within the carrier limits of a free-delivery office, and within one mile of any other office. Special delivery stamps are not available for the payment of postage, nor can ordinary postage stamps be used to secure immediate delivery of mail matter.

Registry—Registered matter can only be delivered to the party addressed in person, or upon his written order. The fact that one person has been in the habit of receiving the ordinary mail addressed to another cannot justify him in claiming registered mail without such an order, no matter what may be the degree of relationship between the parties involved. These orders may be for the delivery of a specific letter or parcel, or for all registered matter addressed to the person giving the order. When a registered letter is delivered the addressee is required to give two receipts—one for the postmaster delivering, and one to be returned to the sender. When the letter is delivered to another than the addressee, the name of both the addressee and the recipient must be signed by the latter.

Addresses—It is not the business of postmasters to answer inquiries made of them regarding the private business of their patrons; nor must they disclose information obtained by them in the discharge of their official duties.

Stamps—Buy your stamps and envelopes at the Oakland office, or at the stations at East and West Oakland. The grade and service of the post-office depend entirely upon the receipts, and not upon the amount of mail matter handled. By assisting in the increase of receipts, you will assist in getting better service. A. W. BISHOP, Postmaster.

The Parable of Happiness.

A rich man's goodly son did go
After to find true happiness.
He tracked the treasures of the snow,
And Indus tracked. The stormy stress
Of Hill-set seas, the peace of palm-set plain
He searched and eager searched; yet searched in vain.

The hundred battered battle gates
Of Thebes, the storied temple door
Of Delphi, oracle of fates
Or sacred shrine or holy store
Of healing things he saw, yet day by day
Grew care upon him like a mantle gray.

Still had he honors oft, and great,
For goodly was his heart and keen
His wit and generous his state,
And much his eager eyes had seen.
Yet happiness came not; and over all
His ways and days there ever lay a pall.

And he grew fretted; came to feel
That fate had hounded him; he said:
"Ah, cursed of God!" His heart grew
steel
And stone; and bitter grew his bread.
At last, outworn, he turned him, with a sigh,
To seek his childhood's home and cheerless die.

And there he sat him, all apart,
A moody, selfish, sullen thing,
Yea, God had given him a heart
Far back. But he had sought to bring
True happiness unto himself alone;
So God loosened had given him a stone.

One day a child passed where he sat
'Mid his ancestral wood and mosaic.
The barefoot thing did start thereat,
And starting, fell. He grudging groaned
Some selfish word, the while he stooped
and bore
The bleeding waif to his own stately door

And oh, the rising sun he knew
That day, and all his after days!
His pent up soul widened till it grew
To reach, as reach the dear sun's rays,
All things that lay about, before;
Nor wailed he out for happiness once more.

—Joaquin Miller in the Independent.

ILLEGALLY ANNEXED.

That Is What the Courts may Decide in the Adams Suit.

Vernon Heights has been illegally annexed! The city of Oakland is not entitled to the territory recently taken within her bounds and the city tax collectors will have to refund the thousands of dollars collected from the people in that territory. If this is the decision to be rendered by the courts in the suit of Edson Adams against the city, the city of Oakland will be retarded in its growth and the councilman who was to be at large in that district will never roam through the corridors of Oakland's municipal building. There will then be only one way to get that territory annexed to Oakland, and that is, to have it brought in by the Peoples Express and Transfer Company which checks baggage to all parts of the United States from your residence, besides doing a general express business. AT MILL VALLEY.

Buildings Commenced and an Active Demand.

RAPID INCREASE IN THE VALUES.

The Water Works Now Under Way and Electric Lights to Be Provided—A Genuine Boom.

As the readers of THE TRIBUNE were abundantly informed beforehand, there was a sale at auction of some fine suburban property in Marin County, on Saturday, May 31st. The location was in Old Mill Valley, and the property was platted under the names of Eastland and Millward. Mr. S. W. Fergusson managed the affair, which is the most unqualified success of the season. Over $75,000 worth of property was disposed of, a large amount being sold at private sale immediately after the adjournment of the auction.

This fact was noted in the press the day following, and the unprecedented success of the sale, in spite of the underhand efforts to injure it, was such that some jealous individuals have seen fit to cast doubts upon its genuineness and the correctness of the reports.

A TRIBUNE reporter happened to be present at the sale, and is therefore able to testify of his own knowledge concerning it. The scene was one which brought vividly to mind the sights so frequently presented during the great boom excitement in Southern California three years ago. Although there was no brass band nor free lunch accompaniment, and none of the mendacious methods of advertising sometimes resorted to where wind is made to take the place of real merit, were used. Nevertheless, it is an absolute fact that so large a crowd was never seen at an auction sale held in the neighborhood of San Francisco. While many who have managed sales have congratulated themselves upon being able to gather six or eight carloads of excursionists, the Mill Valley local drew four entire trainloads of people, each train being made up of ten or a dozen cars. The ferryboats were jammed and the cars were crowded, but all were good humored and arrived safely at their destination.

When the sale opened there was a tremendous crowd about the stand and from the start bidding was lively. The writer kept tally of the sales made, and has since been given an opportunity of inspecting the records of the affair, and is able to testify of his own personal knowledge that every lot knocked down was a bona fide sale, while the sales made since the auction have brought the total up to between $80,000 and $90,000, with every prospect of reaching the hundred-thousand mark within a short time. No one, by the way, has yet been found who was willing to back up his discredit of the phenomenal results by a wager of even a small amount and the writer has therefore been obliged to lose several choice opportunities of winning silk hats, boxes of cigars, etc., which he has offered to wager with people who were very loud-mouthed in their slurs, but "took water like a duck" when pressed to make their words good.

A visit to Mill Valley during the last few days disclosed marked activity on all hands. Each train brings crowds of visitors, who may be seen wandering about, map in hand, picking out some choice spot which remains unsold. Carloads of lumber are being shipped in, and in numerous directions preparations to build are already being made by the fortunate investors—fortunate because prices have already advanced from 33 to 100 per cent since the auction, and sales are being made at those rates without intermission. The prediction made by some, that the price realized at the sale would not last, is thus seen to have been proved false. In several cases resales have been made at 60 to 100 per cent advance, and one lucky individual was offered in the writer's presence, 100 per cent advance upon his investment, which he refused.

The company is busy at work perfecting the water system. Prominent engineers of wide experience in such matters have been engaged, and are now employed in taking the preliminary steps by which the place will be furnished with the most abundant supply of water from the purest sources. All the necessary contracts have been made, and pipes will be laid all over the tract just as soon as the work can be done.

The electric light system spoken of at the sale was not one of those chimerous promises, which were held out so frequently during "boom" times, to induce "tenderfeet" to purchase worthless property, but is a genuine project, which will be carried out just as soon as hard work can do it. Every promise, in fact, made by the gentlemen at the head of this enterprise is genuine, and will be fulfilled to the utmost. One has but to note the names of those who form the company which has inaugurated this scheme to see at once that they are men of the highest character, who cannot afford, even if they were disposed to do so, to be connected with anything which in any manner is calculated to deceive the public.

It is worth while for any San Franciscan to pay a visit to Mill Valley any of these summer days, when San Francisco is damp with fog or swept by chilly, dust-laden winds. The sail across the bay is delightful, and the ride on the railroad is of but a few minutes' duration—not long enough to become at all tiresome; neither are the windows of the cars fastened down so that the fresh, sweet air of the hills and bay cannot be enjoyed. Instead of the chilly, bleak atmosphere of the city, here in the valley at most a gentle breeze prevails, while the fog drifts past in the distance and does not make its presence felt here. If the visitor feels the slightest disposition to inquire into the value of property he will find abundance of means at his disposal, and will be surprised to learn that for the same, and even much lower prices than are demanded for twenty-five foot sandlots in the outskirts of San Francisco, he can obtain here large villa plots and acreage of any desired size. Instead, too, of a sandy waste, upon which large quantities of expensive loam must be hauled before even a blade of grass can be persuaded to grow. Here the soil is a fertile loam upon which flowers of every kind thrive and which offers every facility for the establishment of beautiful surroundings to the home.

The number of visitors that may be seen daily in Mill Valley is ample evidence of the high esteem in which the locality is already held, and it is a blessing to note the expressions of pleasure that we hear in every hour. In all that has been published concerning the place care has been taken to avoid anything approaching exaggeration, and as a consequence instead of visitors being disappointed at not finding their expectations realized, as a matter of fact, with hardly an exception, the universal expression of opinion is of surprise that the full truth had not been told. The redwood groves, the bosky dells along the creek, the lovely plateaus on the hills, all have their admirers, and are constantly visited by hundreds who seem never to tire of their admiration of this lovely spot.

The simple truth is that the furor for Mill Valley has never been equaled in the history of suburban property in the vicinity of San Francisco, and the most impartial person must see at a glance that this locality has a brilliant future before it. The class of people who have already bought and will erect residences is ample proof the fact that Eastland and Millwood are destined to become one of the choicest residence spots accessible from San Francisco by business men.

Strong Language

J. B. Loughran, ex-mayor of North Des Moines, Iowa, said recently: "I have just recovered from a severe attack of la grippe. I used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and applied Chamberlain's Palm Balm to my breast. These remedies were just the thing in my case. My child had croup some years ago, and we used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy with perfect success, since then we have never been without these medicines in our house. I had a cousin who was a printer and was employed in a job office in this city, where they were printing circulars for Chamberlain. He had a deep-seated cold and terrible cough, and while setting up the copy he made up his mind to buy a bottle. It cured his cough and that was the first time I ever knew anything of Chamberlain's remedies. I have been strongly in their favor ever since. My own experience and that of my family convinces me that these remedies are the best in the world. That may be strong language, but it is what I think." For sale by Kirkland & Trowbridge.

PARALYZED!

Our worthy contemporaries are ASTOUNDED and DUMBFOUNDED at having to compete with the prices we make for clothing. But necessity has forced us to raise money to meet the demands of our creditors. Business carried on to RAISE money and business carried on to MAKE money are two different propositions. We MUST have money at any sacrifice, and that QUICKLY. Clothing has never, in the history of California, been offered at the prices we quote at this, the ASSIGNEE SALE of W. F. O'BANION, 712 and 714 Market street, San Francisco.

SHE PRATTLES ON.

Midsummer Meddling of the Maid Who Tells.

SNAP SHOTS AT THOSE ON THE WING.

Weddings Which Are to Be, and Some Which Have Been, With an Idea or Two Freely Offered.

Men may come and men may go, but society goes on for ever. It is an instructive study to note the goings and comings of the different society lights, and to watch the effect that the advent of this one or the egress of that one, has upon the social fabric. The absence of Bert. Brayton in the wilds of Colorado made me think of this. Bert. has gone on in quest of something to put into his water jacket smelters which shall turn out dollars, and will, incidentally, capture the ventricles and auricles of unsuspicious maidens who venture within the magic circle of his range of vision, or happen to see their images reflected in that vast expanse of matchless shirtcollar. Leadville will rejoice in his presence, while Oakland mourns, and that beautifully decorated, cherrywood pro-consumed Denver Theater will be initiated into the mysteries of California dressing. But, alas! it will lose the art again, when Bert. sets his calipers in this direction.

Bert has a younger brother who is now being launched into the great sea of society, to blow his little bubbles in the spume, and sink or swim according to his own exertions. As J. C. Martin said when convincing the Interstate Commerce Commissioners that Kansas City is a seaport, Ned will have "the ocean for a highway, the breeze for a motor, no master but the storm." Ned should, at an early age, be perfect homme, should never commit a faux pas, and should, in short, be a youth perfected by "gentle nurture"—for has he not Bert as his guardian angel and preceptor? He should be "the glass of fashion and the mold of form," although for His Majesty's sake I will add and "the observed of all observers." We all expect great things from Ned, and earnestly hope we will not be disappointed.

I came over on the boat with Mrs. Ralston, nee Grayson, the other evening and could not but remark to myself how much she had changed in appearance for the better. I always thought that Miss Georgie Grayson was a pretty girl, but never thought that but a short time could so alter one's appearance for the better. It seems to agree with the girls to get married. I do hope that some time I will be given a chance for improvement, but the days are long and the waiting is weary.

We are to be deprived of Sam Breck's complexion for the space of a few short weeks, as I understand he is going to honor a certain sylvan shade with his ample proportions. Sam is still as "tall" as ever, mentally and physically, and is still pointed out by all admiring maidens as the youth with the complexion. I wish I had one like it.

The principal social event of the near future, from the amount of talk I hear about it, and the frequent articles in THE TRIBUNE, seems to be the tennis tournament at San Rafael. I hear nothing but "Oh! are you going to the tournament?" and "Won't it be jolly? Why, every one will be there." Indeed, it seems as though every one would. I see that Charley Hubbard, Harry and Louis Haight, Charley Comstock, and George Wheaton are all going to play, not to mention all the fellows who will be there merely in the role of spectators. It will be lots of fun, and every one will see every one they know who is in town at this unearthly time of year.

I see that Scott Seaton has married. Everyone knew it was coming, but no one knew that it would come so soon. Well, good luck to you Scotty! I don't know the girl, but she's a beauty. I remember Scott well when he used to live down on Jackson street. I remember his sister, too, but somehow I have lost track of her in late years. She's married to a New Jersey man I think. Scott and George Wheaton used to play around the street corners in those bygone days, and we girls belonging to a slightly more advanced era, rather looked down on the youngsters, as we called them, and turned our muzzles upon higher game. Scott used to wear bright red stockings and knicker-bockers. My goodness how the time does slip away from one! He and Mrs. Seaton are now on their way to New York to be gone some time, I understand, when they will come back and make their home in Oakland. They have purchased the somewhat historic cottage next to the Sessions' house, and near the corner of Market and Eighth streets. It is to be luxuriously furnished as befits the gilded birdcage of a pretty bride. I wonder if Scott will continue to drive tandem. Marriage sometimes takes that sort of top-lofty speed out of a man. I hope it will not bleach the red from his glorious cheeks or take any of the light out of his snappy eyes. He's very young to be married, and some of us back numbers think he's missed lots of fun. I hope he'll never try to make up for anything he may have lost.

Harry Smith does not seem to be making himself quite as numerous as he once did, and hugs the shutter of his home far more than of yore. Has he quit?

I hear that Leland Gamble's father is very ill up at Highland Springs, and that Leland's brother, Frank, and his sister, Miss Gamble, have both gone up to look after him. I have often visited at the Gamble's home in Piedmont and never knew girls more pleasant and charming than Miss Gamble and sister Fanny. Fanny is now staying in Piedmont, and should her father be no worse, will be on hand at San Rafael on the Fourth. Miss Addie Taylor and her mother have gone to Colorado to join Miss Fanny Taylor, who has been quite ill and is now recuperating.

Harry Adams has gone East. It is rumored that he is engaged to an Oakland belle now summering at the Eastern watering places, and that he pined for her sweet smiles until he was compelled to follow her. I hope it's true.

Last Tuesday evening a large number of people went to the home of Senator and Mrs. George E. Whitney to pay their party calls. There was a jolly time, with light refreshments and lots of gossip. Some of those present cruelly accused Miss Kate Clement of being "The Meddler." I wish I had half as good a figure as she has. I wouldn't be lingering on the market so long if I had. Miss Violet Whitney left yesterday for Honolulu, to visit the family of Paul Neuman. A large number of friends were at the steamer landing to wave her a good-bye and God speed.

Miss Tucker and Miss Nellie McKee are having such a charming time in Portland that Miss Amy McKee has been attracted beyond resistance, and will leave for the Oregon metropolis next week.

Friends of Miss Josephine Pierce have received news of her arrival in England. She is traveling along the green lanes and seeing the old moss-backed sights.

Mrs. George H. Wheaton and Miss Bessie Wheaton have returned from White Sulphur Springs. They say they had a jolly time. They always have a good time. It's in them.

The Misses Whitney were the guests on Saturday and Sunday last of Mrs. Lizzie Williams in Martinez.

Miss Stanford came down from Warm Springs for a visit of a few days early in the week.

Miss Cohen and Miss Ethel Cohen of Fernside, Alameda, visited friends in Sausalito during the week.

Napa Soda Springs had a strong attraction for Harry Miller last Saturday and Sunday.

I wonder who is in the lead for that handsome dead-blonde of Alameda—the Oakland physician, or the young lawyer and real estate speculator who does business in San Francisco. I have my eye on their desperate flirtations.

Professor and Mrs. Bernard Moses, of the University, attended by Miss Ethel Beaver, have started for Spain. They will do the continent. The professor desires to study some of the ancient Spanish records.

C. O. G. Miller is a happy father. It's a girl, and I hear it is to be called Marian. The little cherub held several informal receptions during the week.

The engagement of Miss Bessie Adams to John F. Jackson, Jr., has been definitely announced. I am told the wedding is to take place about the middle of September. Miss Adams is an awfully sweet girl, or I might better say a mighty fine woman. She is the daughter of the late James Adams, and is one of the most popular girls in all the social set. John Jackson is a handsome, manly fellow, the son of Colonel Jackson, recently appointed Sub-Treasurer at San Francisco, and John is to have an important position in the office.

There was another wedding announcement which gave the social set an awful jolt this week. This was Miss Alice Dyer's quiet and unheralded marriage to Captain Oss. Whew! You should have seen the Jackson street gossips hurrying from house to house when the news was first broached. Each was eager to claim priority in the matter of hearing the story, and they fairly lost their breath in speculation as to the ways and wherefores of the secresy of the event. Everybody knew the engagement was on, but nobody, not even the parents, knew of the wedding until several days after congratulations were in order. There was no objection to the match, so its suddenness just mystified everybody. I guess it was just a little bit of a romantic notion on the part of the young couple, and lots of people are accusing the bride's chaperone of helping on the romance. At any rate it's a seven days' wonder and helped to make the city in summer bearable. I wonder who'll get the place of first soprano at the First Congregational.

Mrs. C. L. McCoy and her mother, Mrs. Davis, of San Jose, are expected back from Y semite in a few days.

Mrs. R. N. Rickon returned from Yosemite on Monday. F. M. Smith came home from the valley on the same day. A. A. Moore talks of making the trip with two of his children.

It is whispered in Fruit Vale society that the wedding of Miss Harker and Oscar Derby will take place as soon as the house of Mr. Derby, now nearing completion, is finished and furnished.

Miss Nash of Fruit Vale, who has been attending school in the East, is home for her vacation. She is a stunning girl and is receiving a great deal attention from the blue-blooded young men of our sacred society circles.

James Adams, accompanied by Miss Bessie Adams, Miss Mattie Selleck, and Miss Rosa May, will start for Los Angeles on Monday, to visit Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Graves. They will be gone about two weeks.

Captain Cumming and Alex. M. Cumming, of Fruit Vale, left yesterday afternoon for a fishing trip. When they return, what a magnificent lot of fish stories Alex. will have to tell. With his imagination, he should be a novelist instead of an insurance man.

W. W. Foote and his two sons have gone to Del Monte for a week. Chauncey Taylor has been at Monterey for several days, but is expected back soon.

Several theater parties have been organized for Wilson Barrett's performances on Thursday and Friday evenings of next week. While here, the great actor will be entertained by Robert R. Grayson, at the home of the Graysons, on Madison Park. Bobby gave him a great dinner at the Pacific Union Club not long ago.

Mrs. John W. Coleman and Miss Jessie Coleman will leave next week for Alaska. Pretty Miss Jessie will leave a void in several hearts. Miss Lou Shepard, accompanied by Miss Claire Ralston and the Misses De Fremery, will go to Alaska on the same steamer.

Mr. and Mrs Arthur Page, accompanied by Miss Bertha Ralston, will make the Yosemite trip next week.

Harry B. Houghton and Harry Gordon will soon go to the Carmel river, Monterey county, after a collection of fish stories. They will be recognized by the variety and abundance of their "bait."

Jim Fisher seems to feel lonely since the departure of Gus Macdonald and Bert Brayton. The attractions of the Oakland girls seem to have palled upon him. His absence from a fashionable Jackson street boarding house has been quite noticeable. It is rumored that he is prospecting for another granite quarry at Felton. I hope he will not find a flint at the heart of it.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bailey and Miss Bailey left yesterday for their Honolulu plantations.

Mr. and Mrs. Horatio Livermore have gone to their summer home at St. Helena. They will give a housewarming on July 4th and a number of Oakland and San Francisco friends have been invited to enjoy the occasion with them.

General Houghton has purchased his old home back from the Ralstons, and it was hoped that the Houghtons would return here to live, but they have moved from the Palace into the Crooks house on Sutter street and seem to be fixed on the other side of the bay.

Miss Kate Clement left today for Sausalito, to spend a few days with Mr. and Mrs. De Ruyter.

Mrs. A. W. Havens and her daughter have gone East, while Mr. Havens is coaching the baseball team to his heart's content. I hear he is no longer "the Jonah," whatever that prophet may have to do with sliding to bases.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Hamilton are visiting the family of Judge Noble Hamilton in San Francisco.

THE MEDDLER.

Miss Craddock in the Palmer Company.

With the A. M. Palmer Madison Square Company, which will begin an engagement at the Baldwin Theatre, San Francisco, on July 7th, there comes a young lady to whom Oaklanders will be pleased to extend a generous welcome.

Miss Nannie Craddock, the young lady referred to, is almost wholly an Oakland product. Here her family reside. She was reared in this community, and at the Oakland High School, where she was a favorite pupil of Principal McChesney, she received her education, graduating at the head of a class of exceptionally bright pupils.

Rightly regarding dramatic representation as a high art, excellence in which was only attainable as the result of patient study and painstaking practice, she took a thorough course of training at the Lyceum School of Acting, under the instruction of Franklin H. Sargent, and later entered the Madison Square School under Dion Boucicault. From the latter school she was soon transferred to the regular stock company of the Madison Square Theater, where she has slowly but surely worked her way up to her present position, solely by her unaided efforts. To her have been assigned the parts until lately sustained by Marie Burroughs, who recently severed her connection with the company. From the pleasant things the critics have written about her, and from her ability creditably to sustain every position to which she has been assigned in one of the best stock companies in the country, it may be safely inferred that she possesses merit of the desirable order.

A Day in the Hills.

A party of merry pickwickers left Alameda last Saturday and had a most enjoyable time on Hinckley & White's ranch, in the Fruit Vale hills. A riving at the White residence the cherry orchard was placed at their disposal, until the team was ready to convey them to the picnic ground. Mrs. White acted as chaperon, and under her direction a pleasant time was spent. Among those present were: Mr. and and Mrs. W. W. White, Miss May Cobbledick, Miss Belle Cobbledick, Miss Roxie Lagoria, Miss Helen DeNett, Miss Amelia Lagoria, Miss Theresse Lagoria, Miss Ethel White, Miss Gertie Lyons, Miss Daisy Fortier, Miss Lizzie Nixon, and Messrs. Harry Hinckley, George Harris, Cliff Bretz, George Oberle, Norton Wells, Will Hinchman, Adolph Chariot, Lloyd Brown, Bert Brick, Henry Hoffmann, and Peter Rock.

At Temescal.

A charming party celebrated the first anniversary of Catholic Ladies' Aid Society No. 16. The social gathering was held last evening at St. Lawrence Hall, Temescal. Pretty decorations brightened the building. The stage was converted into a refreshment booth, managed by the following ladies: Mrs. Murray, Mrs. Butler, Mrs. O'Rourke, Miss White, and Miss Swords. At the rear of the room were two other booths, one a flower stand and the other a gipsy's tent. The flower tent was made of lace and decorated with lanterns. In charge of it were: Misses Genevieve Patsdeon, Maggie De Frates, M. Vedage, M. Shannon, Lizzie Bates, and S. O'Rourke. The Gipsy tent was surrounded by a lawn, and imitation brick wall, covered with vines, presenting a beautiful and rustic appearance. The Gipsy queens who told the fortunes were: Mrs. J. J. Finn, Miss Belle Beaudry, Miss M. Healy, and Miss Florence Beaudry.

Dancing was engaged in until after midnight, Clark's orchestra furnishing music. Following are the committees in charge of the affair: Floor Manager—R. Vellage. Floor Committee—J. J. O'Rourke, M. Quinlan, E. Finn, and W. O'Rourke. Reception Committee—Mrs. Butler, Mrs. Finn, Mrs. Vellage, and Mrs. Murray.

Among those who enjoyed the evening were Mrs. S. O'Rourke, Mrs. Maggie Shannon, Mrs. Maggie Swords, Mrs. M. Healy, Miss M. DeFrates, Miss K. Barlow, Miss Ryal, Miss J. Dieckman, Miss Grace Swords, Miss Smith, Miss Mamie Moran, Miss Irwin, Miss K. Bowers, Miss Brennan, Miss Belle Smith, Miss Taylor, Miss McKeeley, Miss Fannie Mooney, Miss A. Mooney, Miss A. Charles F. Crocker, First Vice President, and J. A. Fillmore, General Superintendent of the Southern Pacific Company, have returned from their trip to Portland.

Invitations have been issued by Miss Mary E. Riley for a reception to be given at her home Fourteenth and Adeline on Saturday evening, June 28th.

The Los Angeles correspondent of the Wasp says: "The first fashionable hop of the season was recently given at the Redondo Beach Hotel. The hotel was erected by Messrs. Thompson and Ainsworth, of Oakland, who have sunk nearly $1,000,000 in land, wharves, railroads, hotel, electric lights and baths in order to make Redondo a great summer resort. Only about fifty of the Los Angeles 'Four Hundred' attended the opening hop, which was a depressing fact, considering that the managers expended $800 for extra waiters, flowers and provisions for the invited fete."

Mrs. E. A. Mackie, of Oakland, sailed for Europe on the Cunard steamer Umbria, after having spent eight months visiting in New York and Philadelphia.

Miss Marie Vanjeohan, the music teacher of West Oakland, and her mother, will leave, Monday, for Nevada City, where they intend spending the next four weeks, stopping at the National Exchange.

ANOTHER FAMILY.

James Rhodes No Relation of the Missing Edward Rhodes.

A paragraph in THE TRIBUNE announced that James Rhodes, who was arrested a few days ago, was the brother of Edward Rhodes, who, several months ago, went sailing in the bay with a companion named Pierce and never returned. This statement is not true. Investigation of the source whence THE TRIBUNE obtained the information has been made. The result of this investigation is that a police officer told the story as a fact to a reporter, who naturally assumed the officer knew whereof he spoke. The error caused annoyance to a family already over-troubled, and the officer should learn the lesson to be sure of the truth of what he tells. He seems, however, to have spoken in ignorance and not in malice. Unfortunately, the annoyance to the grieved family is not lessened by this. The Rhodes arrested is no relative of the Rhodes family of which the missing Edward is a member.

The Bride Has Flown.

Mrs. Wooley and her daughter, who was married to W. G. Nicholson and then left him, saying he deceived her, have left Oakland and taken the train for the South. Nicholson is still in Oakland, aiding the cause of litigation. After his fruitless attempt by writ of habeas corpus to get back his wife he sued the lessee of the Lick House, San Francisco, for $20,000, asserting he was damaged in that sum because a clerk in the Lick House opened and read to Mrs. Woolley a letter in which young Nicholson impolitely referred to his mother-in-law as a cow.

Clothing Sacrificed at Assignee's Sale.

Public attention is called to the advertisement of the sale of the assignee of W. F. O'Banion, a prominent clothing merchant. The assignment was made to Mr. Hale, Sheriff of this county. The failing was for a large amount, and money must be raised at any sacrifice.

Union Box Makers.

At a meeting of the Federated Trades Council in San Francisco last evening, Mr. Pye, of the Box Sawyers' and Nailers' Union, reported that he expected the Oakland Box workmen would form a union or join one next week.

ALAMEDA.

A Charge of Forging a Signature to a Telegram.

T. G. Daniells, who was expected to arrive today, missed connections and will not get here until tomorrow.

Fred Wheeler, son of George W. Wheeler, fell from a fence at the West End last Thursday and broke his arm.

Constable H. F. Morris left this morning for Catalina Island, where he will remain for several weeks for the benefit of his health.

A row of magnificent poplar trees on the sid-walk of the Piper Fromm tract on Pacific avenue, West End has been cut down. The trees stood too near the new curbing of the avenue.

There will be two entertainments and balls this evening in Alameda—one at the West End in celebration of the organization of West End Lodge, No. 175, Workmen, and the other at the Park Opera House, in celebration of the first anniversary of Pawnee Tribe, Order of Redmen.

The Alameda City Brass Band will practice tomorrow in the High School yard and endeavor to get in trim for their first appearance in public, which will be next Tuesday, when they will furnish the music at the laying of the corner stone of the Masonic Temple.

A couple of section hands invaded the vegetable garden of a Chinaman at the West End a few days ago and stole some cucumbers. The Chinaman gave chase, and as he was about to overtake the two men, the section boss, named Neal, hit the Chinaman, knocked him down and kicked him in the ribs. Neal was taken into custody by Officer Lawrence on a charge of battery.

William Newman was arrested yesterday on a charge of forging the name of Mrs. Rea, of the Park Hotel restaurant, to a telegram. The reason of the alleged forgery is not apparent, as the parties who know the facts will not divulge them until further developments. The warrant was issued by Justice Byler, and it is said another person is wanted in connection with the affair.

Mme. Ruppert's

World-Renowned Face Bleach

Is not a cosmetic, but a thorough cleanser of the complexion, having the same effect on the face as our wearing apparel, by friction, has on the rest of the body, thus gently removing the dead, carious cuticle that covers the pores, obscuring the latter of all poisonous fillings and drawing from beneath the skin all impurities or discolorations that have been accumulating there for years. Having this action, it cannot fail to clear any skin and remove entirely freckles, moth-patch, black-heads, chronic pimples, eczema, acne, roughness and any disorder tion or blemish of the complexion. Face Bleach has been thoroughly tested; horrible complexions cleared by its use for public inspection. Face Bleach sent to any address on receipt of price: One bottle, $2; 3 bottles (usually required to clear the complexion), $5. Send 4 cents for postage for complete particulars and catalogue of wonderful Face Bleach. MME. A. RUPPERT 121 Post st., rooms 7 & 8

Musical.

MRS. STOWE.

An Outdoor Glimpse of a Famous Woman.

SHE IS YET PHYSICALLY STRONG.

Maupassant's Home in Paris—Harold Frederic's Success—Patti's Magazine Article.

[From our Regular Correspondent.]

NEW YORK, June 16th.

It was between trains in Hartford, a little over a week ago, and as I had nothing to do, and over two hours in which to do it, I strolled through the shaded streets of the town. It was upon turning into Forest street that I saw, coming toward me, a small old woman shambling along unconscious, apparently, of people or surroundings. In her hand, she carried a small tree-switch, and as we had almost passed I was a little surprised at the venerable little lady calling me and saying: "Young man, you have been leaning against something white," and with a dexterous movement she brushed some wall dust from the sleeve of my coat. It was not until the moment of her accosting me that I recognized in my self-appointed, "brush" no less a personage than Harriet Beecher Stowe.

"This is Mrs. Stowe, is it not?" I asked, after tendering my thanks to her.

Those wonderful and strange blue eyes looked into mine most curiously, as she answered:

"That is my name, young man. I live on this street," was her reply, and without giving me a chance to say another word she walked away.

HOW MRS. STOWE LOOKS.

I could not help standing still in surprise watching the retreating figure of the best-known woman writer in America today. That Mrs. Stowe is mentally uncertain, the incident I have related would seem to indicate, but physically she seems to be in good health. Her skin has turned almost completely a dark brown and yet I saw a suggestion of ruddiness in both the cheeks. I noticed particularly that the hands were very much emaciated, and it seemed as if there was scarcely flesh enough left to cover the bones and veins. She was most curiously dressed, in the plainest dress conceivable, a dark red scarf tied round her neck, and an odd little bonnet which seemed to make her look even more insignificant and dwarfed than she is. How strange to associate this wandering woman on the streets of Hartford with the brilliant author and the friend of George Eliot and the Duke of Argyle of a score of years ago.

THE HOME OF A FRENCH WRITER.

A friend of mine has just returned from a visit to the home of Guy de Maupassant, and it is interesting to hear him talk of the famous French novelist's house, in Paris. It is a luxurious place, this friend tells me, and is shared by Maupassant's cousin, M. de Poitevin, a landscape artist of some repute in France. The exterior of the house is very simple, but the interior is sumptuously furnished and fitted with rarities of all kinds. His summer residence is at Etretat, the well-known seaside resort in Normandy. In his small cottage, named La Guillette—the feminine of Guy—he spends several months every year; and as the summer heat is most congenial and mentally stimulating to him, it is here that he has done most of his literary work. M. de Maupassant would pass as a handsome man. He is stout, of medium height and well built, has a fine head, well poised on a strong neck, and covered with wavy brown hair. He has a bright, agreeable expression of face, brown eyes and dark complexion, and a pleasant mouth half hidden by a soft brown moustache. His walk is brisk and cheery and his bearing soldierly.

A BOOK WHICH SHOULD SELL.

An interesting example of individual literary enterprise came to my attention, and it is a case in which the author is deserving of all possible success. Every one who reads the daily newspapers will remember the sensation that was created about a year ago by the narrative of the remarkable adventures of Captain Joshua Slocum. In February 1, 1886, Captain Slocum sailed for Montevideo with a cargo of case oil, taking with him his wife and two sons. While cruising in the southern seas he met with almost every mishap that could befall a sailor, including a mutiny, spread of smallpox and a complete desertion on the part of his crew. When a new crew was shipped his vessel suddenly went to pieces off the eastern coast of South America. His crew left him, and with indomitable pluck the captain set to work and built out of the fragments of his ship a boat thirty-five feet long, his wife sewing the sails for him. In this he and his family embarked, and after an adventurous ocean voyage of fifty-five days, reached the coast of North America. He arrived at Washington December 27, 1888, and his trip was looked upon as something miraculous. The boat, which the captain named the Liberdade, was exhibited at Boston and other places, and was then given by its owner to the Smithsonian institute, Washington. In this fatal trip the unfortunate captain lost everything, and it was in the hope of re-imbursing himself in part for his loss that he wrote a thrilling account of his adventures and published it himself, under the title, "The Voyage of the Liberdade," which he now offers for sale. The book is a graphic and picturesque narrative of this marvellous trip, and both on account of the interest of the story and the cause of its publication it deserves success.

MRS. SOUTHWORTH ON THE STREET.

I chanced too see Mrs. Emma D. E. N. Southworth on Pennsylvania avenue in Washington two days ago, and I had the curiosity to walk behind her for a few squares to see if anyone recognized her. No one did, apparently, and yet I suppose there was not one of the hundreds of women who promenaded past her but had read several of this prolific author's novels. Mrs. Southworth has permanently removed to Washington, having left her Yonkers (N. Y.) home some weeks since. At this latter place she has been for years a peculiar character. Many curious stories are told of her there now she found perfect delight in throwing ashes and garbage with her own hands out of the side door of her cottage. Her dresses were marvels of show, and when she attended church on Sundays she was the cynosure of all the feminine eyes of the congregation. She had many eccentricities and odd little habits which made the people of Yonkers finally regard her as a harmless old lady. She resided with her son, who, as a physician, enjoyed a large practice; but the home is now broken up, and Mrs. Southworth has moved into the modest cottage just outside of Washington, owned by her for some years. Why she changed her place of residence no one seems to know, and only a few in Washington know today that she is living among them.

THE AUTHOR OF "THE LAWTON GIRL."

An acquaintance of mine, who is an intimate friend of Harold Frederic, tells me that many of the scenes and incidents which the novelist portrays in his books, are drawn from his own life in the interior of New York State, where he was born and spent his boyhood days. Frederic is now the London correspondent of the New York Times, and has but little work to do, and for it receives a most comfortable salary. He has plenty of leisure time at his disposal and this he devotes to his books. He is a careful and painstaking writer, and several of the best literary critics of London believe that he possesses a reserve power which he has yet to show to the literary world. His position gives him entree to the best literary circles of London, and he is very popular. Mr. Frederic is yet a young man, has gone through a great deal of hardship in his younger days, but now seems to be well on the road to literary fame.

HOT WEATHER LITERARY NOTES.

Baseball has entered fiction, and a new serial story, by William D. Moffat, called "The Crimson Banner," will shortly be published in New York.

One of the leading New York publishing houses, I was told the other day, have going into type a novel by an unknown writer, which is destined to be the literary talk of the winter. The publishers consider it "the literary find of the year."

Maud Howe's widely-advertised story of "Phillida," which is now running in the Ladies' Home Journal is to be brought out in book form.

Mrs. Alexander, the English novelist, recently received a severe fall, in one of the London streets. She has now, however, almost entirely recovered.

Madame Patti seems, after all, to have left behind her a magazine article, to be published next winter.

The interest in P. T. Barnum's forthcoming book of funny stories is even more keen in England than in America, and there is every indication that the book will have an immense run in London.

Rudyard Kipling, Oscar Wilde and Mrs. Alexander have each written a complete novel for Lippincott's Magazine.

It will be a pity if the late Oliver Bell Bunce did not leave behind him sufficient literary material and data for the compilation of a posthumous volume. Mr. Bunce was in touch with the leading literary lights of the past two-score of years, and his editorial positions gave him opportunities for judging literary men and women seldom accorded. His reminiscences, if in shape and and could be gathered together, would make one of the most interesting volumes of its kind ever published, and it is to be hoped that his family will find sufficient data to make possible such a book.

Mr. Gladstone is said to have in hand an American novel which he purposes to review in one of the English reviews. He is reported in conversation to have commended the book in higher terms than he has ever used in connection with any other work of fiction. There is apparently a bonanza in store for some fortunate author.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

NOTHING LIKE IT

Its peculiar efficacy is due as much to the process and skill in compounding as to the ingredients themselves. Take it in time. It checks diseases in the outset, or if they be advanced will prove a potent cure.

FOR WHOSE BENEFIT

No Home should be Without It.

It takes the place of a doctor and costly prescriptions. All who lead sedentary lives will find it the best preventive of inferior Indigestion, Constipation, Headache, Biliousness, Piles and Mental Depression. No loss of time, no interference with business while taking. For children it is most innocent and harmless. No danger from exposure after taking. Cures Colic, Diarrhœa, Bowel Complaints, Feverishness and Feverish Colds. Invalids and delicate persons will find it the mildest Aperient and Tonic they can use. A little taken at night insures refreshing sleep and a natural evacuation of the bowels. A little taken in the morning sharpens the appetite, cleanses the stomach and sweetens the breath.

A PHYSICIAN'S OPINION.

"I have been practicing medicine for twenty years and have never been able to put up a vegetable compound that would, like Simmons Liver Regulator, promptly and effectively move the Liver to action, and at the same time aid (instead of weakening) the digestive and assimilative powers of the system."

TWELVE-PAGE EDITION.

An English Critic on the Recent Accident.

An example of the high and mighty, partly contemptuous, tone maintained by the English Tory press is found in the St. James's Gazette of June 2d, in a paragraph commenting on the recent accident at the Webster street bridge. The Gazette says:

The San Francisco "accident" is an almost purely American type of casualty. It seems to have resulted from the most happy-go-lucky carelessness. It does not appear that anybody lost his head, the most frequent cause of accidents in other parts of the world. A drawbridge over an estuary was being lowered after the passage of a vessel; and the driver of the train, ignoring the danger signal, calculated apparently that before the train could reach the bridge it would be lowered. But he was going at a high speed; part of the train fell into the water, and thirteen people were drowned. There have been of late a good many examples of this American carelessness of human life; and we shall probably never know how many people have been killed by the casual way in which electric light wires in New York and elsewhere have been left unprotected. The notion seems to be that America is a large country, and that a few people killed do not matter much. "Full speed ahead and take your chance" is a great principle; but Americans will presently begin to see that because a country is big is no reason why its disasters should be big too.

To generalize from the reckless act of one man to the characteristics of a whole nation, seems a hasty sort of logic. As a matter of fact, the railroad figures show that the proportion of accidents to passengers and train men is larger in England than in any other country, but we do not doubt the Gazette would claim that the English accidents are a matter of necessity, while those in America are due to Yankee perversity or preference.

THE history of the Fresno Congregational Church and its pastors makes an interesting albeit somewhat monotonous serial story. Its first pastor was George E. Freeman, under whom the church grew rapidly, but Mr. Freeman had not been long in charge when he was seduced by the prospects of raisin making. He went his way to the country and is rich. He was succeeded by the Rev. Mr. Meserve now of this city. Mr. Meserve was a great success as a preacher, but he had a weakness for dentistry and he fell, with lucrative results however. He was followed by a divine of the name of Voorhies, who soon sought a larger field as Secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association of San Francisco. Next came the Rev. E. G. Cradlock all the way from the East. He, alas, has now joined the ranks of the worshipers of Mammon, and having resigned his pastorate last week is now advertising that he will pay the highest price for raisins. The Congregational Church of Fresno appears to offer a fine business opening or an ambitious young man.

WE had occasion last week to say in reference to the quality of the reading matter consumed in Oakland, and indeed in most other towns, that there was much good to be got from reading fiction if the choice is reasonably well directed. An exchange which takes the other view furnishes a grotesque example of the style of argument which is thought good enough to support those venerable platitudes which have become sanctified by time. It is said of the effects of moral reading:

The tissues of the moral nature give way to a greater or less extent, and the emotions of the heart, which flushed at the first reading of the extravagant and exciting narrative, sooner or later undergo a kind of petrifaction—the heart of flesh becoming a heart of stone.

A petrified emotion would be an extraordinary mineral curiosity. Lastly we wonder if the writer believes that the heart is the seat of emotion. The heart is simply a pump and has no more moral sensibility than its iron brother.

THE path of the literary editor is full of snares. Only the other day the New York World offered a prize for the best original poem to be submitted, and the winner was a certain James Clarence Harvey. We quote a stanza:

I wonder if ever a song was sung but the singer's heart sang sweeter!
I wonder if ever a rhyme was rung but the thought surpassed the more!
I wonder if ever a sculptor wrought till the cold stone echoed his ardent thought?
Or, if ever a painter with light and shade the dream of his immortal portrayed?

It is pointed out that this is merely a poor paraphrase of Richard Realf's fine poem "Indirection." Alas!

A NOVEL form of religious and temperance function is reported from Indianapolis, where a temperance revivalist held services on Sunday afternoon, last week, at Sim Coy's beer garden, in presence of 3000 people. The beer and the eloquence flowed in contending streams, and many were converted and signed the pledge

"SENATOR" CRANE is not altogether pleased with the reception which his play got at the hands of the California critics and audiences. In an interview he says:

Californians are a very peculiar people. I am not speaking personally, of course, but as a class they seem to put themselves up on a little pinnacle or pedestal. They seem to think they know a little more than anybody else. They do not want to know anything about New York or the East. They think California is the greatest State in the world, and that they know more than anybody can tell them, no matter where they come from. I wish that all first-class attractions could stay away from here about one year.

Mr. Crane need not stay away on our account, for his play, apart from the acting, is a long way off first-class. It is a rather dull burlesque, unreal to the extent of becoming absurd without meaning to be so, but Mr. Crane seems to think that because New York approved, California has no right to her opinion.

THAT W. D. English would very easily obtain the united support of the clubs of his party in this county for the nomination he is seeking was never a matter in much doubt and the results of the meetings held last night amply confirm this view. Mr. English has the misfortune to be a Democrat, but he is popular in Alameda county irrespective of party affiliations and will undoubtedly have a solid county delegation behind him in the convention. It costs nothing to say this, because Mr. English is simply chasing a rainbow, California being impregnably Republican, but if a nomination would be gratifying to him, he has certainly earned it at the hands of his party.

A PERSON of the suggestive name of Babel, age of 72, married a young lady of 55 in Sacramento the other day. This venerable patriarch was divorced last week from his third, and no doubt felt that having passed the Biblical limit of age there was no time to lose. An unfortunate omission in the report of this interesting social event is that we are not given the itinerary of the wedding tour of Babel. Nevertheless we heartily wish him many happy returns of the day.

IT is alleged, in excuse for some of the census commissioners here and in San Francisco, that the necessary information was obtained from landlords of hotels and lodging houses, or from neighbors. This is not a legal enumeration under the census act, and simply amounts to faking returns.

THE Dundee, Scotland, Evening Telegraph of May 31st prints a good picture of the California Cotton Mills of this city, and claims the manager, William Rutherford, as a former townsman as well as a member of the Town Council of Forfar.

IN Marysville four census men have thrown up their jobs. They say they can make more money trampling hay in a press.

CURRENT POLITICS.

It is stated that James G. Fair is one of Stephen M. White's backers in his senatorial campaign.

The San Jose Times says there is some doubt whether the $3000 promised for the expenses of the Democratic State Convention can be raised, and the convention may not be held there after all.

Joseph McKenna, the present Representative in Congress from the Third Congressional District, is a candidate for re-election. He has made an excellent record in Congress for ability and industry.—The Wasp.

State Senator James D. Byrnes of San Mateo is frequently mentioned as a Republican candidate for Congress in the Fifth District. Mr. Byrnes has a wide acquaintance in the district, and has strong friends in every county. His personal popularity as a man has been well attested in two successful elections for State Senator.—The Wasp.

It is reported that Senator A. F. Jones has withdrawn from the Senatorial fight in this district, and will go before the State Convention for the position of Lieutenant-Governor. Backed by the solid votes of Butte, and surrounding counties, which will demand recognition on the State ticket, it looks more than probable that the Democratic ticket will be Pond and Jones, or maybe Jones and Pond. There is no telling where lightning will strike in a Democratic convention.—Chico Enterprise.

DR. SELFRIDGE RESIGNS.

The Attending Physician at the Fabiola Hospital.

Dr. J. M. Selfridge has tendered his resignation from the position of attending physician at the Fabiola Hospital. The directors trust that he will withdraw his resignation. It is said that the doctor feels slighted because a document purporting to be an authoritative history of the Hospital Association does not show that the first steps for organizing the hospital were made by the Alameda County Homeopathic Medical Society, and because physicians of other schools than homeopathy are permitted to treat patients at the hospital. He will not speak upon the matter.

Mr. Hoffman's Explanation.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TRIBUNE—Sir: In my communication to you last Thursday I gave the wrong impression in regard to Mrs. Western. She did not come to my room herself, but sent the landlord to call me to escort her home. There seems to be a misunderstanding as to who Mr. Hoffman is. I am employed at Alexander's shoe store as the shoemaker, not as salesman. I make this explanation that my sins may not be visited upon the heads of others. Trusting you will publish the above out of justice to Mrs. Western and the salesman who has been mistaken for me. I am

Yours respectfully,
H. HOFFMAN.

Oakland, June 20, 1890.

The Lathers' Union.

Squire Openshaw, a resident of Alameda, has resigned the position of President of the Lathers' Union. He had been working for less than union wages, and his resignation was requested. Charles Van Haltren was elected President, and Charles Copp, Vice President. The other officers are: Thad Orlup, Secretary; George Dugan, Treasurer; and Al Bowen, Sergeant-at-Arms.

LAST DAY!

Is Your Name on the Roll?

If Not, Call on One of the Enumerators.

THE TRIBUNE LISTS ARE CLOSED.

Help the Underpaid Canvassers and Also Help Your City.

SEE THAT ENROLLMENT IS COMPLETE.

Supervisor Anderson Wants the Aid of All the People.

There Is Time This Evening and Tomorrow to Supply Many Omissions—See That You Do It.

The census in this city closes on Monday. This is the last appeal which THE TRIBUNE can make to the people and the enumerators to help each other in bringing out a full count of the citizens. The enumerators have evidently been stirred to greater activity by THE TRIBUNE'S efforts, and that the people are interested is evidenced by the great number of persons who send their names and addresses to the office and agencies of this paper. If there are any others who think they have been missed, instead of sending their names to THE TRIBUNE they should send them to the enumerators of their several districts. A list of the enumerators has been furnished by Supervisor Anderson at the request of THE TRIBUNE. They are appended to the following letter:

OFFICE OF SUPERVISOR OF CENSUS FOR THE SECOND DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA, SACRAMENTO, June 20, 1890.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OAKLAND TRIBUNE—Sir: Any omissions in enumeration must be reported to the enumerator of the district where the omission occurs. It is my object to leave nothing undone to secure a full and accurate census. While it is probable a small percentage may be omitted, I am confident my enumerators will obtain a very accurate return in the main. Any errors in enumeration will be corrected by the enumerators on furnishing requisite information. Many people labor under the impression that they are not enumerated because the enumerator does not call on them personally. But in nineteen cases out of twenty those persons are listed in schedules furnished by the landlords of lodging houses and hotels. In all cases investigated here this has been demonstrated.

Herewith find a list of enumerators with their residences. Any person who thinks he has been omitted from the census returns can call on the enumerator of his district and be satisfied. Following are the enumerators:

GEORGE A. PARKER, 865 William street.
CHARLES F. COLE, 948 Union street.
DWIGHT A. HENDERSON, 1067 Willow street.
J. W. DUTTON, 1312 San Pablo avenue.

W. A. ANDERSON,
Supervisor Census.

So if you have the least suspicion that you have been overlooked, send your name and address to the nearest enumerator. If he has your name he will know it. If he has not, and intends to do his duty, as he undoubtedly does, he will call and get it. Every one counts. Oakland people believe this city to be the second in size and importance in the State. They should make every effort to see that the census returns show this fact. It is necessary again to assure census enumerators that THE TRIBUNE is not treading on their corns in its efforts to bring out the complete returns. Some of them persist in thinking that the publication of names of those who think they have been overlooked is a direct challenge of their honesty and ability. Such is not the case. We merely wish to aid them, not to hinder or criticise. The following peculiar screed is sent in by one of those who has not yet been able to grasp THE TRIBUNE'S meaning. He is to be pitied rather than blamed. His communication reads:

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TRIBUNE—Sir: As an enumerator of the U. S. Census, and assigned to the 11th Enumerating District, I have noticed your paper dated June 19th and June 20th, and have noticed the names which there appeared, as those who have not been enumerated.

In my district, bounded north by Tenth street, east by Brush street, south by Fifth street and west by Adeline street, I find in your list but one name charged against me, and that name is "Sam Burbank, 763 Eighth street," I happen to live in that block and know that the gentleman does not live there—that he formerly did I do not deny—but that the house is now occupied by Mr. Thos. L. Horn and family and they have been enumerated.

In the presence of the Times office, and in my presence Sam Burbank disclaimed all knowledge as to having been approached by any reporter seeking an answer to any question regarding the enumeration, consequently your mention of his name must have emanated from one of the diseased brains of your reportorial staff.

My work, as far as your brainless reporters go, is open to inspection in so far as I can go within the instructions received.

In regard to the reports of others I have nothing to say, save in the case of W. H. Ayers, who was assigned to a district which could not possibly be covered by any man—reporters not excepted—in less than six weeks. His district is bounded by Tenth street on the north, Brush street on the west, Broadway on the east and Fifth street on south.

If you are familiar with the instructions issued to the enumerators, could you reasonably expect a man to get over that district within the time prescribed?

Echoing sentiments for myself—and I can conscientiously speak for the other enumerators—we have had trouble enough, without your meddling newspaper articles, which seems to be your only desire to fill up your columns with a reading matter not concerning the public, but trying to stab people in the back, through the medium of your prerogative, "Freedom of the Press," while we, as enumerators, have done our work honestly and really put in more hours' work than actually required. Get your list, Mr. Editor; send your brainless satellites out for information. We will meet you in the end and show the people of Oakland that the work has been duly and truly performed, and that the worst enemy we had was the newspapers of Oakland.

CHARLES E. DAVIS,
Enumerator Eleventh District.

To those who know Mr. Davis, this communication will need no explanation. To those who do not, it is only necessary to say that he is not as fierce as he writes, and doesn't mean all he seems to say.

In regard to Mr. Ayers' district if it is too large for him, he should have notified Supervisor Anderson at once, and insisted on being given assistance. Just because Mr. Anderson has given a man more than he can do in the allotted time, Oakland cannot afford to be docked several thousand, or several hundred, of its real population. Mr. Ayers is an old man, and his district a populous one. If he has not been able to cover it, it must be done over again. In regard to his work, Mr. Ayers has written the following communication:

Have noticed your remarks in regard to the census enumerators, and the names mentioned in your paper as those who have not been enumerated. I notice particularly that most of those names occur in the lodging houses bounded by Seventh street on the south, Tenth street on the north, City street on the west, and Broadway on the east. Did it ever occur to the heads of those people that the enumerator of that district has had assigned to him a district bounded as follows: From Tenth street on the north, Broadway on the east, Fifth street on the south, and Brush street on the west; and how could one man do his work conscientiously, as prescribed by law, within the time designated? Surely, he must have had an electrical machine inserted in his body, his whole system an electrical works, with Edison's improved electric pen in his hand.

Those people who have reported to your paper as not having been enumerated, must feel very tender, and to those who have come forward and tendered their names, it can only be asked that they accept consultation and finish the work. They are doubly welcome to the job.

Growlers will be growlers as long as this world lasts, but those who now growl are the very ones who expect an enumerator to leave his district, walk to this growler's office—outside of his particular district—and enumerate him and his family there.

As an enumerator, I claim that no enumerator should go outside of his district. It is not his fault if no one is at home. He has used due diligence, and can only learn from the neighbors who and how many of a family lives next door.

I admit that it is the wrong time of the year to take a census, many families being on a summer vacation, but it must be remembered that the Federal fiscal year commences on July 1st, hence the census has to be completed before that time.

If the census, as taken up by the enumerator, in this city, is not satisfactory, let other enumerators be appointed to go over the ground, and extra enumerators so appointed should be careful to have their compensation placed in commensurate to their work.

THE TRIBUNE has specially drawn Mr. Anderson's attention to this communication. Mr. Ayers admits that he cannot do the work assigned to him properly and conscientiously. The people of Oakland demand that it shall be so done before the returns are sent on to Washington and the population of Oakland given to the world. Mr. Ayers deserves credit for his candor, at least. If other enumerators conscientiously feel that their work has not been properly done they should say so, that an effort may be made to have it done over again with a sufficient force. It must be properly and completely done.

W. C. Whitman, whose district comprises the eastern portion of the second ward, north from Twentieth street and east from Grove takes THE TRIBUNE'S efforts in a proper spirit. He carefully goes over the names published and if any of them fall within his district he ascertains whether he has them or not. To-day he came twice to this office to look over the names sent in so that he could close his work this evening and feel that he had not overlooked anybody which it was reasonably possible to find. He says there are a few houses in his district which seem to be vacant, but in which there is a bare possibility that some one may reside. With the exception of these he is sure he has enumerated every man, woman and child in his district. Only one of the names sent to THE TRIBUNE was in his district, and that one he had already placed on his list.

W. F. Delainey, enumerator in district No. 10, says he got Charles McCarthy, of 701 Brush street, on June 3d.

Captain Stephen Merritt has completed the enumeration of the Fifth ward. He could not do the work alone and obtained the assistance of Professor Isaac Wright. He wishes to thank the residents of the ward for their assistance, and urges any person who so much as suspects that he has not been recorded, to send his name and address to him at 262 Thirteenth street. That's the right way to go about it!

Following are additional names of persons who think they have not been enumerated. If they have been, the publication of the names is no reflection on the enumerators:

J. F. Nordhausen, 1335 Linden, corner of Eighteenth street, write: The census enumerator has surely missed my family of four persons.

P. W. Anderson, of 52 Central avenue, writes: According to your suggestion in last night's TRIBUNE I send you names of persons in our family, at 52 Central avenue, as no enumerator has called: P. W. Anderson, E. J. Anderson, John Anderson, W. A. Anderson, A. W. Anderson, Mabel Anderson, Charles Nemma.

Robert Bow, southeast corner Fifth and Webster street; office, 450 Ninth street.

Thomas McGlone, 305 Fifth street.

George A. Warder, 305 Fifth street.

S. H. Covert and wife, 1736 Eighth street.

Chris Nor, whose stable is at 1505 Seventh street, says that he has four men working for him, who sleep on the premises, and that they have not been enumerated.

Mr. Bates, the contractor, of 756 Eleventh street, says there are seven in the house who have been missed.

J. L. Howard, of Vernon Heights, says nine persons in his household have been missed.

H. Neddermann, 501 East Twenty-fourth street.

J. G. Fredrikson, of 1568 Linden street, has four in his family, and says he has not seen the census man

A. Kirkness, M. Cohen, F. Page, 417 Eighth street.

J. H. Hickox, 1014 Broadway

Four people at 1826 Linden street.

Thomas Johnson, 1609 San Pablo avenue.

Dr. L. E. Kelly, 1169 Clay street—five in family.

Albert Wallman, 1207 Adeline street.

John P. Wonderlich, 235 Twelfth street—twelve persons in the house.

D. Taglialue and wife, Grand Central.

E. G. Harvey, 1128 Filbert street, four in the family.

A. R. Knoll, 1019 Filbert street, four in the family.

Mrs. S. S. Montague, 1019 Filbert street, five in the family.

George H. White, 969 Jefferson street.

C. S. White, 957 Jefferson street.

Charles Routh, 511 Fifth street.

James C. Kyte of 1762 Market street writes that he has not been counted and that he thinks the following have been overlooked: Ernest Brown, engineer Manhattan, No. 5; John Rutherford, fireman Manhattan, No. 5 Jonas Parsons, stoker Manhattan, No. 5; John Watson, extraman Manhattan, No. 5; V. P. Mitchell, 1754 Market street. Mr. Kyte says that in his neighborhood there seems to be no end to the people who have not seen or heard of an enumerator.

The block bounded by Filbert, Linden, Twenty-first and Twenty-second streets, has been wholly neglected, unless the people living there are mistaken. Mrs. Childs and daughter live at 1005 Twenty-second street, and in the rear of her residence the family of Mr. Ohlsen, six members, and of Mr. Barrett and Mr. Hahn, four members, reside. At 1007 Twenty-second, lives Michael Pendergast with a family of five, and at 1005, Mrs. Williams and husband.

No. 1009 and 1011 are occupied, but the seven residents have not been counted; at least, if they have, they do not know it.

At 1571 Filbert street, Alex. Hoenisch has a family of six, and Mrs. Stanford resides alone at 1575. Wm. Manu, proprietor of the Washington-street Planing Mills, and family, numbering five lives, live at 1567.

On the Twenty-first street side of the block, between Filbert and Linden streets, H. Federspiel lives at 1004 with a family of five: Carl Nelson, wife and three children, and Sylvester Davids. Seth Davids and Peter Lauritzen live at 1008. Paul Schafer and wife and Mrs. Hunt reside at 1005, upstairs.

At 1014 Dyer Carpenter with a family of five resides. John Gotfrid Fredrickson, at 1568 Linden, has family of three. The correct number of inhabitants in the entire block is fifty-six, not one of whom has been enumerated, according to the statements made today to a TRIBUNE canvasser, whose only purpose is to help the enumerators. Mr. Fredrickson had left at his house the following note for the enumerator when he should call: Name, John Gotfrid Fredrickson; place of birth, Sweden; head of family; fair education; speaks five languages; no chronic disease; occupation, machinist; steady employment; resident here eight years; property valued at $5500; mortgaged at $2000; wife and one child.

It would appear that the neglect extends northward from Twenty-second street, on Myrtle street, as well as Filbert.

Frank E. Maloney, three in family, at 1740 Filbert, has not been called upon so far as he knows.

O. J. Ohlsen, shoemaker, at 1061 Myrtle, corner of Twenty-second street, was not counted. The family of John Tubmann, nine in number, live in the rear of Ohlsen's shop, and have not been counted that they know of.

At 1007 Myrtle lives F. G. Weston with family of three, at 1013, James Cahill with family of five, and at 1051, E. H. Flora with six in family, and adjoining lives John Tillman with family of four.

Mrs. Williams has a family of six at 1577 Linden, and at 1561 Filbert John Feeney and five in family. Every one of the above named houses have been visited by a TRIBUNE canvasser and the residents say that beyond any possible question no census enumerator has called up to noon today.

W. W. Tucker, residing at 661 Nineteenth street has not been counted, three in family.

Also the following:

John Delaney, corner Clay and Fourth streets.

Daniel Walsh, corner Webster and Fourth streets.

Dennis Connelly, seven in family, 761 Washington street.

Wm. Monahan, corner Fourteenth and Webster streets.

Thos. Pullis Sr. and Thos. Pullis Jr., 320 B street.

George M. Miller and wife, 918 Alice street.

Carl Mierhoff, 357 Thirteenth street.

Thomas W. Whalley, 529 Sixteenth street.

H. Pfug, 1764 Market, three in family.

Robert W. McKibben, three in family, 1410 Brush.

Lester Wallace, residence 670 Thirteenth street, aged 27, a native of Ohio, father and mother both natives of Pennsylvania, a white man, can read and write, a railroad ticket agent, and lives in a rented house, would like to have these facts recorded by an enumerator.

D. B. Rickey, 1363 Brush street, three in family.

David R. Lee, Franklin, corner First street.

Phelps ——, 1136 Chestnut street.

L. D. McMahon and J. G. White, living at 508 Eighth street, have been missed. They are home after 5 P. M.

George W. Lewis, attorney, at 921 Broadway, has not been counted.

John Terney, residence 1015 Washington street, with family of five, not called upon.

Newton Benedict and family at 1007 Ninth avenue, and Major Glenn, 933 Castro street, six in family, say they have had no call from enumerator to 12 M. today.

C. W. Henon, 358 Seventh street.

F. A. Nulk, 560 Ninth street.

A. Buck, Samantha Buck, Harry Buck, Annie Buck, Alex Holton, Bernette Holton—1227 East Twenty-second street.

G. B. Stirling, 1232 Chestnut.

Jacob Winkler, of 614 Fourth street has not been enrolled. The enumerator called at his house while he was absent and questioned Mr. Winkler's little girl, but obtained no information. He was told to return, but he has not done so as yet.

Seeking Health.

G. W. Brock left for the East, last Thursday. As he has never recovered from the fall he received a year ago, his physician has ordered a complete change of scene and climate, and perfect rest. He says Oakland will be his home as soon as he is able to resume business.

The Standard

IN DAYS OF OLD was carried by a man whose courage was beyond question. By one whose bravery could be relied upon to rally fainting hearts and turn the tide of battle. He was foremost in every charge. For the glory of planting his standard on the enemy's rampart he freely gave his life. There are standard bearers in civil life also. They are men who labor industriously and conscientiously to raise the standard of excellence in food products and thereby aid in making life enjoyable.

SCHILLING'S BEST is one of these standards. It has not the picturesque glory of the standards of ancient chivalry, which led to death. It claims the nobler glory of leading to health and enjoyment of life those who use the culinary supplies it brands.

SCHILLING'S BEST, our standard, we intend to plant in every household. Test the articles it protects and you will honor it as we do.

AT IT AGAIN.

The Speaker's Ruling on the Silver Bill

IS AGAIN THE SUBJECT OF DEBATE.

The Speaker States His Position. An Appeal From His Decision Laid on the Table.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—After the reading and approval of yesterday's journal, Bland moved that the House reconsider the vote by which the yeas and nays were ordered upon McKinley's motion to table his (Bland's) appeal from the decision of the chair yesterday, declining to entertain his motion to take the Silver bill from the Speaker's table. He announced that he desired to withdraw the appeal, but McKinley insisted on a vote, so Bland's motion to reconsider was put and defeated by 90 to 120.

The roll was called on McKinley's motion to table Bland's appeal. It prevailed by yeas 146, nays 45. All the free coinage men, except De Haven, who did not vote, voted to table the appeal, as well as the following Democrats: Buckle, Campbell, Dunphy, Fitch, Geisenhainer, Lewis, McAdoo, Mutcheler and Tracey. A large number of Democrats refused to vote.

The regular order of business was demanded, and Speaker Reed proceeded to state his position on the mooted question of the reference of the silver bill, which he had referred to the Committee on Coinage, Weights, and Measures. He said the rules required that such bills be referred, and that a statement to that effect should be put in the journal and record. The statement was made, and the House saw fit not to permit it to become a part of the journal. That left a somewhat difficult question as to the status of the bill. Individually, the Chair believed the refusal to record the fact did not obliterate the fact itself. The Chair believed the Senate amendments to the Silver bill came within the purview of rule 20, which prescribed that any amendment made by the Senate to any House bill must be considered first in Committee of the Whole, if it would have been so liable had it originated in the House. The Senate amendments to this bill struck out the first section and substituted another section containing no words of appropriation, and proposing a different line of action, to-wit: The fashioning of silver bars and coining of all silver presented, instead of the purchase of silver bullion. This and other substitutions were plainly new propositions requiring consideration in Committee of the Whole. Under these circumstances, and in conformity with the rules, the Chair held that the bill had been referred and was now referred to the Committee on Coinage, Weights, and Measures.

Bland of Missouri appealed from the decision and proceeded to argue that the appropriating clause in the original House bill and the bill as it came from the Senate was similar in terms and purpose and the bill was not subject to reference to the Committee of the Whole.

Parkins of Kansas said it was the purpose not to secure free coinage, but to force through a measure the President would be obliged to veto.

Henderson of Pennsylvania held up the Urgent Deficiency Appropriation Bill as an instance of a bill which had taken the same course, as the Silver Bill in reference.

Springer declared that the Silver bill only had been subjected to this treatment. The Republicans and their Speaker were dodging the silver question.

Crisp, of Georgia, said a discreditable way had been found under the rules to still the minority when that minority had become a majority. This was the only opportunity to get a vote upon free coinage. If the Speaker was sustained and the bill went to the Coinage Committee, and ever again should come before the House, it would come under a rule that would keep it entirely within the control of the gold men, who would alone be recognized to move amendments.

Townsend of Colorado, said he voted as he had because he felt it his duty to his people to endeavor to get free coinage.

Morrow of California, contended in opposition to the Speaker's ruling that the bill was on the Speaker's table and open to the disposition of the House.

Herman of Oregon said the silver question was the issue of the election held four weeks ago in his State and he had agreed to support the Republican State platform declaring in favor of free coinage. These were his sailing orders.

Barrine of Nevada said the representatives of the silver-producing states were mostly new members, not trained in parliamentary practice, but he could read plain English, and when the rules said the bill must be considered in Committee of the Whole, it did not mean it was to go to the Coinage Committee.

Fitch of New York said it was plain that yesterday's proceedings were a victory for free coinage, and when it came to that point he would refuse longer to combine with the Republicans and would vote to refer the bill to the proper committee.

The House laid on the table Bland's appeal from the Speaker's decision by yeas 144, nays 117.

PLENTY OF MONEY

To Build a Railroad From Lakeport to Ukiah.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 21.—D. C. McDougal of Lakeport, who has been here for a few weeks, claims to have succeeded in organizing a company for the purpose of building a road from Lakeport to Ukiah, a distance of thirty-two miles. The line has already been surveyed, and is estimated to cost $720,000. McDougal says there is plenty of money behind the scheme, several San Francisco capitalists being identified in the movement.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 21.—The work of getting in overlooked census returns is progressing slowly. Supervisor Davis received a communication from Washington this morning granting him the required extension of time for completing the work.

THE MORMON PROPERTY.

The Bill Disposing of the Funds Before the Senate.

Edmunds Presses for Immediate Action—The Democrats Support the Mormon Cause.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—The House bill supplementary to the Act of March 22, 1882, in reference to bigamy, was taken up by the Senate. It provides that all the funds and property lately belonging to the Mormon church shall be devoted to the use and benefit of the common schools of that State. Butler offered an amendment devoting the funds to the endowment of an institution of learning in Utah and for that purpose turning them over to the General Board of Education of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, subject to regulations to be approved by the President of the United States, and not to be used in teaching or propagating polygamy.

Mr. Edmunds, in charge of the bill, opposed the amendment.

Voorhees intimated that Edmunds was in too great a hurry to get at the results of the litigation not yet concluded. With that litigation still undecided in the Supreme Court of the United States, he thought this was not the proper time to decide where the fruit of that litigation should go.

Butler also argued that the proposed legislation was premature.

Teller favored delay. If the Mormon Church could use the money for proper and right purposes, the Mormon Church ought to have it. That was the plain ethics of the matter.

Butler's amendment was defeated by yeas, 9, noes, 24.

All yeas were Democrats, and all the nays were Republicans except that of Payne, who also voted in the negative. There was no quorum, but Butler, in view of the vote, withdrew his amendment.

Voorhees moved to postpone the bill to the second Tuesday in December.

Edmunds opposed the motion and said the bill did not affect the property at all until the Supreme Court should dispose of everybody's rights, public and private.

Voorhees' motion was not agreed to by yeas 20, nays 25. Hawley, Plumb and Teller voted with the Democrats in the affirmative. The bill passed without a division, with some formal amendments.

The Senate then took up the Senate bill to establish educational funds and apply the proceeds of public lands and receipts from certain land grant railroads to the more complete endowment and support of colleges for the advancement of science and industrial education.

A GREAT ADDRESS.

Professor Joseph Le Conte on Platonism and Evolution.

Professor Joseph Le Conte, the venerable and noble educator and philosopher and literateur, the man in the University of California most loved, one of the great apostles of the world of the theory of evolution, read a great address at the University last evening on "Platonic Arguments for Immortality in Comparison With the Arguments Drawn From the Theory of Evolution." A synopsis of such a paper is not fair to the man who read the address, but an idea of his views may be gained from a statement of his points.

Plato, he said, provides for the pre-existence of the soul, but not for its origin. The common orthodox view accounts for the origin of the soul in that it is created outright by God, but does not account for pre-existence.

Professor Le Conte would provide for both. God, he said, expresses himself through nature. In plant life divine energy is expressed in so far as to sustain life, but without giving consciousness of itself. In animal life the energy has reached consciousness sufficient for the purposes of life, but not self-consciousness.

In man the divine energy first reaches self-consciousness. This is spiritual life, and by virtue of it man is immortal.

While nature is in the one sense the mother of the soul, yet God is both father and mother of it, in that God is the primary cause of nature as well as of soul.

Professor Howison, who is a great admirer of Professor Le Conte (and who is not?), does not agree with his fundamental principles, and will speak on the subject next Tuesday evening.

OPERA BY AMATEURS.

The Graceful Compliment Paid by Germans to Citizens at Large.

That the attendance at the opera Die Fledermaus, to be given next Monday evening at the Oakland Theater for the benefit of four charities will be large is assured by the sale of seats. That this performance by the amateurs, principally members of the music section of the Oakland Turn Verein and the Riehl Quartette, is excellent, is well known because the opera has been given here by exactly the same cast. The Germans are paying a very nice compliment to the people in return for the hospitality shown the Turners during the recent Fest.

Is Mrs. Ashby Here?

A report is current that Mrs. Zella E. Ashby, who is accused by Omaha papers with acting with Clifton E. Wayne in supplying worthless notes to the Omaha Banking Company, of which Wayne was President, to make a showing of assets, has been quietly living near the corner of Ninth avenue and East Twenty-third street, East Oakland.

Necrology.

Gertrude Hechheimer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hechheimer of San Francisco, died in this city at the age of 11 years and 10 months.

The funeral of Matthew O'Brien of 129 Hannah street will be held at Sacred Heart church, Temescal, at 9 A. M. tomorrow.

The Chinaman May Die.

Thomas Mee was arrested this afternoon in Alameda for battering a Chinaman so seriously that he may die.

A FATAL SWATH.

A Village Wiped Out by a Cyclone.

A SCHOOL HOUSE LIFTED UP BODILY.

The Teacher and All the Children Killed—A Tremendous Storm Without Warning.

AMBOY, Ill., June 21.—The little village of Pawpaw was visited by a terrible fatal cyclone yesterday evening. The first notice of the coming change was a dark cloud in the southwest but before a warning could be given of the great danger, most of the southern part of the village was in ruins and nearly a score of inhabitants were dead or dying. A tremendous rain, preceded the cyclone, and the streets were flooded and the creeks overflowing. During the heaviest of the rain an ominous-looking cloud passed just south of Amboy, and the awful roar it made could be distinctly heard above the rumbling of the thunder. It no sooner passed than people observed leaves, sticks, straw, etc., falling from the clouds. Soon after a messenger on horseback brought news that the cyclone had passed a mile south of the village. Relief parties immediately made their way to the scene, where trees were uprooted, houses and barns demolished and people killed on all sides. Fourteen were killed and many injured within ten miles of this place. The cyclone cut a distinct swath a mile long through a grove. It first demolished James B. Lee's farmhouse and barn. The families went down cellar and escaped with some severe bruises. With increased fury the cloud came upon the Hunt school house, two miles south. Teacher Maggie McBride, of Amboy, and eight pupils were waiting in the building for the storm to abate. Every vestige of the building was wiped out and not one soul in the building escaped. An observer says the building was raised in perfect shape 300 feet in the air where it went into fragments and was lost to sight. The body of the teacher was found in the street partially nude and badly bruised. The pupils were found in the creek some distance north.

Reports from the surrounding towns show that the storm started at Harmon, in Lee county, and proceeded to Sublet and Compton, and thence to Pawpaw. A great many were seriously injured, but they are distributed over a distance of thirty miles, and cannot all be reached. Thirteen are known to be dead, mostly children. A schoolhouse in Brooklyn township, south of Compton was completely demolished, and the teacher and scholars injured; two children meeting with death. The loss, so far as heard from, is $100,000.

EARLVILLE, Ill., June 21.—The report that the town of Pawpaw was destroyed and seventeen people killed there is untrue.

Anticipating the Fourth.

Eddie Van Glahn was arrested last evening by Officer Scanlan for discharging fire-crackers within the city limits, thereby violating a city ordinance which provides that fire works may be discharged only on the 3d 4th and 5th days of July. Judge Henshaw read the boy a lecture and let him off with a fine of $1, on the promise that he would not violate the ordinance again.

For the Electric Road.

F. K. Shattuck has gone East to inspect the plants of the electric roads of some of the Eastern cities. When he has determined which system is the best, the contract for cars and motor for the Oakland and Berkeley Rapid Transit Company's road will be awarded, and not till then. The rails for the road are laid on Grove street nearly to the city limits.

Yo Semite Tourists.

This year Yo Semite is the place sought, not only by visitors to this State, but by residents of California. The valley is peculiarly attractive this year, because the streams are unusually high, by reason of the great snow and rain storms of last winter. Everybody seems to go to Yosemite. This is the boom year of the valley.

An Old Injury.

Mrs. A. J. MacMurty, who has been very ill for the past two months, is now out of danger. The trouble is from an old hurt received some seven years ago at the San Francisco Art School. A falling easel struck her on the left temple. This is the second time she has been very low from the same cause.

HIS WIFE'S THROAT

THE END OF A BAD FAMILY QUARREL

Flight of the Murderer and the Pursuit—Governor Hill Will Not Visit the Coast.

COLUSA, June 21.—Charles Bell, a coachman and servant for J. W. Good, stabbed his wife in several different places this morning and then cut her throat with a large pocket knife. They had been having trouble for some time and Mrs. Bell had commenced suit for divorce. The immediate cause of the deed is unknown. Both are colored. The doctors are trying to save her life, but she will, probably, die. Bell escaped, and started on a run down the river, but the Sheriff and others started in pursuit. The feeling against the man is intense, and threats of lynching are indulged in.

HILL DECLINES.

New York's Governor Will Not Visit this Coast.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 21.—Governor Hill has accepted an invitation to attend the unveiling of the Hendricks' monument at Indianapolis on July 1st. By reason of his official duties the Governor has declined urgent invitations to extend his trip to the Pacific slope, including one from the State of Washington to be present at the organization of the Washington State Association of Democratic Societies at Tacoma in August.

THE GREAT FAIR.

Preparing for an Exhibit From Alameda County.

A PERMANENT ORGANIZATION.

E. M. Gibson, President, and Charles T. Boardman, Secretary—Delegates to a Convention.

The Committee of One Hundred, appointed by the Supervisors to take preliminary steps to have Alameda county properly represented in the World's Fair at Chicago in 1893, held a session in the Courthouse this morning to organize for business.

The committee began work by electing Judge E. M. Gibson, Chairman pro tem., and T. W. Jeffress, Secretary.

After this had been done, the committeemen began to discuss the next step to be taken, and no one seemed to know exactly what the next move was to be.

J. M. Hanford and Columbus Bartlett urged that the committee elect five delegates to the general convention of similar organizations, that is to be held in San Francisco during September.

Some wished to go ahead and take independent action to have Alameda county represented in the World's Fair, while others desired to let the plan rest with the general convention, while the Alameda county organization awaits instructions of this State Convention and carries them out.

It was finally decided to appoint a committee on permanent organization and order of business, and the following were selected:

Oakland City—J. M. Hanford and M. D. Hyde. Alameda, Columbus Bartlett and T. A. Smith; Oakland township, J. E. McElrath; Brooklyn township, E. G. Blaisdel; Eden township, E. T. Crane; Washington township, E. H. Dyer; Murray township, V. Alviso.

The General Committee took a recess, and the sub-committee went into session.

The Committee on Permanent Organization reported the following resolutions:

Resolved, 1. That this convention hereby resolves itself into a permanent body, to be known and called the Alameda County World's Fair Association.

2. That the officers of said association shall be a president, a vice-president, a secretary, and a treasurer, who shall hold office until October 1st, 1890, or until their successors are elected and qualified.

3. That this Association proceed at once to elect five delegates to the State World Fair Convention to be held in San Francisco September 11, 1890.

4. That a committee of five be appointed by the president to formulate a code of by-laws and rules for the government of this Association.

5. That when we adjourn, we adjourn to the call of the chair.

These resolutions were adopted, and the following permanent officers elected: President, E. M. Gibson; Vice-President, M. J. Keller; Secretary, C. T. Boardman; Treasurer, First National Bank.

The Chair then appointed the following delegates to the convention in San Francisco and alternates:

Delegates—J. E. McElrath, H. W. Meek, Columbus Bartlett, D. W. Standeford, E. H. Dyer.

Alternates—A. D. Pryal, H. J. Blasdel, C. Nordhausen, Charles Tadsell, F. Bohmer.

The following committee was appointed on by-laws: Columbus Bartlett, J. E. McElrath, W. R. Davis, Henry Hauschildt, and M. J. Keller.

An assessment of $5 was levied on each member of the Committee of One Hundred, and they adjourned to the call of the chair.

MEN AND WOMEN.

WEBSTER'S UNABRIDGED

DICTIONARY!

Large Quarto, 11x9 inches, 5 inches thick, weight 9 lbs, and the DAILY AND WEEKLY TRIBUNE as follows:

Dictionary and Daily Tribune, 1 year : : : : $9.50

Dictionary and Weekly Tribune, 1 year : : : : 4.00

THE DAILY TRIBUNE will be delivered by OUR CARRIERS at above price. Postage prepaid on all mail orders received.

This Offer is worth careful consideration by all who desire a good Dictionary of the English language—and who does not?

This is the Best. No other reprint edition of Webster's Dictionary is so complete as is this one. Not only does it contain all the words that Noah Webster ever defined, but 10,000 additional new words have been added to it.

The Appendix of this edition contains much valuable matter that is not in the other cheap editions, as follows: The pronunciation of the principal European Languages, Quotations, Phrases, etc., from Latin, French, Italian and Spanish, Abbreviations, seven pages of Mercantile and Legal Terms, etc.

It Also Contains a table of 15,000 Synonyms, eleven pages of a Pronouncing Vocabulary of Scripture Proper Names, twenty-one pages of a Pronouncing Vocabulary of Greek and Latin Proper Names, forty-seven pages of a Pronouncing Vocabulary of Modern Geographical Names, and 1500 Pictorial Illustrations.

This Book is Leather Bound. It is not thrown together, but is well and substantially bound in half morocco—good leather, not shoddy—with full back. It is well and durably stitched, and, with the ordinary use of a dictionary, WILL LAST A LIFETIME.

Call and See It. It will Bear Inspection

It is Worth Three Times What It Costs, and agents are selling it from house to house at $5 to $7 [without the paper] every day. It is not the latest edition of Webster's Unabridged, nor do we claim that it is as good, for it has not the colored plates, patent index and modern technical terms that make the last edition of the Unabridged, which costs from $10 to $12, a triumph of the bookmaker's art; but for all ordinary purposes of the reader, student and business man it fills all requirements.

AGRICULTURAL.

The North Hillsides Best for Fruit.

THE CULTIVATION OF CURRANTS.

People Who Have Great Luck With Poultry—Some Facts About the Yield of Figs.

SOMETHING ABOUT FIGS.

From time to time the Enterprise has called attention to the profits offered by the fig industry. E. M. Nevins, who is growing figs, thinks that they will pay twice as much as raisins and that they can be made to yield as high as $1000 per acre. Another very important item is that there is no pest to destroy either fig or tree.

W. P. Graham, who has a fig orchard a few miles north of Selma, says that of 1,100 trees which he put out only ten or fifteen died. Mr. Graham is making an intelligent test of this important fruit. We copy the following from the Republican:

John S. Dore has an abiding faith in the utility of fig culture in this county, and he proposes to go largely into the business next season. He has just balanced his accounts on last season's fig crop, and the result is more than favorable. He has seventeen four-year-old trees of the White Adriatic variety, which he bought from the Fancher Creek nursery. These trees were planted very close together at the rate of 126 to the acre. He sold 116 pounds of dried figs to Meade & Co., at 6 cents a pound, and a lot of poorly cured ones at 3 cents a pound. The best he put up in one-pound cartons and sold them at 25 cents.

The yield of his crop from seventeen trees at the prices he obtained represents an income of $711 90 from a single acre of four-year-old trees. He is now an enthusiast on fig culture.

He did very well with half an acre of raisin grapes four years old at the present time. Two years ago he received $12 for the crop, one year ago he received $90 dollars, and this year he received $150, equal to $250 for an acre of raisin grapes.

This is no boom article. Mr. Dore is a man of standing in the community, a member of the Grand Jury and has the receipts and other vouchers to verify his statements.—Selma Enterprise.

CULTIVATION OF CURRANTS.

As a rule currants are not cultivated at all. They are planted in some out of the way place, or along a fence where at best they can be cultivated or hoed only on one side. They are pruned spasmodically, or not at all, and soon become a tangled mass of weeds, dead wood, moss-covered trunks, or branches with a stunted growth of shoots on top and the feeblest cluster of buds on the two-year-old wood. At best such a row of currant-bushes can give only a poor crop of the smallest fruit. But after the currant-worm attacks them and strips off the leaves the currants wither up and are not worth picking. Currants should have as good cultivation as corn or potatoes, and this, with a coat of manure or a top-dressing of superphosphate and nitrate of soda, has a wonderful effect. The pruning consists in cutting out the old branches, stripping out all the suckers (except two or three to be left to form new branches), and in the fall or spring cutting back the shorts or suckers about one-half. The weaker they are the more should they be shortened back.

The best way to renovate an old row of currant bushes is to set out new ones where you can cultivate on both sides of the row. Meantime, if you do not wish to trot out the old ones, give them a severe pruning, and either hoe or fork the ground to kill the grass and weeds, or cover the ground thick enough with manure or mulch to smother the grass and weeds; or, better still, sow three or four ounces of equal parts of nitrate of soda and superphosphate to each bush. Scatter it broadcast on the land for a distance of two or three feet on each side of the row. The earlier this is done in the spring the better, and, if not done till the bushes are in full leaf, avoid sprinkling the fertilizer on the leaves, as it, sometimes, burns them. Recollect, however, that these fertilizers are not substitutes for hoeing or mulching. If the weeds and grass are left to grow, they will take the lion's share of the nitrates and phosphates. But, if you hoe or smother the grass and weeds, the effect of the fertilizers will be very marked.—American Agriculturist for April.

LUCK WITH POULTRY.

There are several people in New Jersey who have what is called "great luck" with chickens. Two of them, both women, have such different ways of managing, and such similar results, that they are worth comparing. Both make their poultry pay them well, and have many eggs at the time when housekeepers and incubators will pay high prices. One is a capable little woman living on a small place. She raises fine Spangled Hamburgs and sells them at capital prices. All the food for her fowls must be bought, but she supplies every need. Two warm puddings and a meal of grain those chickens have every day, besides meat, oyster shells and cabbages. She always tests the hatching eggs, and such success has she in raising the young stock that she thinks it is her fault when a thoroughly hatched, strong, little chicken dies. The other is the wife of a farmer, who from fifty hens gets great baskets of eggs every week all winter. Her thrifty, handsome flock is of all sizes and colors. She gives her fowls no warm food, no lime, no green food, and no meat except when the ground is covered with snow. They can always find all the whole corn they want in the barn. In the early morning she gives them oats and wheat, both whole, and warm water to drink. These two ways have points in common on examination. The first henwife must give to her hens what the others find for themselves. In the rich plowed fields on the farm are lime, and insects, which, with their myriad of eggs, furnish animal food in plenty. Hay and corn stalks take the place of green food. Both flocks are kept in clean quarters, and with both there is careful breeding. Every feather is thought of importance in one, and in the other the owner breeds from the "best hens and the largest cocks." In these two cases "great luck" means wise feeding and thoughtful breeding.—American Agriculturist for April.

FRUITS ON NORTH HILLSIDES.

When it can be secured, a hillside sloping south is the best for grape growing.—Eastern paper.

Now, the truth is, that a hillside sloping south is best for nothing—grapes or any other plant—unless it may be early spring crops, of value because of their earliness only, neither East nor anywhere else on this continent. South hillsides may be of value for grapes and other crops in climates which have not summer heat sufficient to ripen such crops on other exposures; but in the whole continent of North America the extra warmth and exposure of the hillsides sloping south is not needed for any crop, except as above.

The reverse is true. All over this continent we have too much summer heat and light for the fruits and crops we are cultivating; for these plants and trees are mostly of a European origin, where there is much less summer heat and clearer skies than in this country, and those countries have much greater summer humidity. Paris, France, is in the same latitude as Quebec, Canada. London, with its clouds, fogs and great summer moisture, is much further north. Sunshine and sun-warmth in the British isles are scarce articles, and for grapes to gain their full growth south slopes are of great value; and the same is true to a less extent all over western Europe. In Germany the cultivation of the grape has been carried away north of its natural habitat, and to ripen its fruit there every advantage must be taken of southern slopes and warm soils. We get too many ideas from these countries, of exposures and pruning, not in the least adapted to the same fruits and plants in our hot, bright, dry summers. I found this to be true in the climates of our eastern States, especially so in the prairie states. Then, how much more true is it in the hot, dry, bright summers of California? Here in the cool, coast region of California nature could only clothe the cooler north hillsides and the moister valleys with trees and brush. The slopes facing south are, as a rule, only covered with annual plants that grow in winter and early spring, while on the northern slopes we find heavy, often thick, growths of timber; and besides, the ground beneath them covered with a thick growth of plants, brush and ferns. Furthermore, the soils on northern slopes are generally very rich. They are full of humus and other plant foods. They are deep, moist and cool. Our winter apples, especially, and nearly everyone of our fruits, should be planted on northern slopes—our grapes high up on such slopes, and nearly every fruit we grow, where it would not be so quickly rushed to maturity, and would have time to ripen gradually and properly, so as to elaborate all their juices and flavors to perfect development.

In Illinois, I had 200 acres of hill land in fruits—some of it quite steep, with mostly north and south exposures. Like most others, I planted my grapes on a rather steep southern slope, but soon found I had made a mistake in planting them or anything else there, except early berries or garden truck. In that State, all the grapes we grew would ripen anywhere before frost, and in hot, dry summers my crops on the south slopes were burned and dried up—especially so the fruit trees. My winter apples, in such seasons, on the south slopes, were of little value. How much more strongly do these facts apply here, where we have no autumn frosts to fear. Our steep, rich northern slopes are eminently adapted to the perfection of winter apples, and, I am proud to say, for everything else.—B. B. Wier, in Petaluma Courier.

Deafness Can't Be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that we cannot cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

PROPOSALS

For Sweeping and Cleaning Public Streets of the City of Oakland.

OFFICE OF THE BOARD OF PUBLIC Works, Oakland, June 20th, 1890.

In accordance with resolution No. 568, of the Board of Public Works, Sealed Proposals will be received in open session of the Board of Public Works, at their office in the City Hall, on Tuesday, the 1st day of July, 1890, for the sweeping and cleaning of streets in the city of Oakland, which are or may be hereafter paved with bituminous rock.

General conditions—The work to be done consists of sweeping and cleaning, with good effective machines, the public streets of the City of Oakland, that are paved with bituminous rock, or those which may be hereafter so paved, between the hours of ten (10) P. M. and six (6) A. M., during a term of one year, from July 10th, 1890.

Bidders will be required to state the sum per mile, linear measurement, for sweeping and cleaning the streets, and portions of streets, as hereinafter specified, under the following specifications, and as provided by the following schedule:

Sweeping—The streets to be cleaned in the following manner: Each street to be sprinkled by a watering cart when and where necessary; the entire surface of the roadway, unless prevented by obstructions, to be thoroughly swept from the centre towards the gutters, the sweepings to be collected by hand and immediately removed from the street and should any of the sweepings be deposited upon the sidewalks or remain in the gutters or upon the crossing covers at the corners of the streets, the same must be swept off by hand and removed at the same time as the rest of the sweepings, prior to 6 o'clock each morning, and all the work to be done and performed to the entire satisfaction of the Superintendent of Streets and the Board of Public Works.

The contractor will be required to report in writing, to the office of the Superintendent of Streets, by 9 A. M. daily, the streets or parts of streets cleaned during the twenty-four hours preceding.

The Superintendent of Streets, or a Deputy designated for that purpose, shall make examination daily of all streets or parts of streets so reported as having been cleaned during the last preceding twenty-four hours, and if the Superintendent of Streets is satisfied with the manner in which said work has been performed, he shall enter in a book kept for that purpose the name of the streets and parts of streets, with the lineal feet in measurement of the work so accepted.

If upon such examination, the Superintendent of Streets, or his Deputy, shall find that the streets or parts of streets directed to be cleaned, and as reported by the contractor as having been cleaned, are not thoroughly swept and cleaned to his satisfaction and approval, he shall make a statement in writing of such work as has not been done to his satisfaction and deliver same to the contractor upon the same day, and the contractor shall not be credited with the same, or allowed any payment therefor. Should the contractor feel aggrieved by reason of such action of the Superintendent of Streets he may appeal therefrom to the Board of Public Works at their next meeting, who, after examination, may remedy and correct the action of the Superintendent of Streets, and the decision of said board shall be final and conclusive in the matter.

If the decision of the Superintendent of Streets is sustained upon such appeal, the contractor shall forwith proceed to clean such streets or parts of streets not cleaned as aforesaid to the satisfaction of said superintendent of Streets. If the contractor shall fail to perform said work as aforesaid, to the satisfaction of the Superintendent of Streets then the Superintendent of Streets shall forwith report such failure to perform said contract to the Board of Public Works, and after examination if it shall appear that the contractor has neglected or failed to perform all of said work, then the Board of Public Works shall terminate the contract and its future proceedings to collect the amount provided for as liquidated damages in the Bond hereinafter mentioned, executed for the due performance of said work.

The contractor will be required to clean all such streets and parts of streets, as designated by the annexed schedule, and by the Superintendent of Streets in pursuant thereof. Provided, that, whenever, in the judgement of the Superintendent of Streets and the Board of Public Works, inclement or rainy weather render the sweeping and cleaning of the streets inexpedient, the work shall be suspended by the contractor on notification to that effect also provided, that when the pavement of any street, or parts of streets, becomes too much broken to be properly swept, such street, or portion thereof, as may be in bad repair, shall not be swept during the time the same shall be out of repair.

The contractor will not be required to remove any sand, dirt or rubbish placed upon any street by railroad companies in the laying and repair of tracks, or by any individual or corporation engaged in laying pipes, sewers, or other work, by reason of which sand, dirt or rubbish shall be deposited upon the street.

The number of miles of streets swept and cleaned during the month shall be made out at the end of each month from the book of record kept by the Superintendent of Streets, and payment made monthly therefor at the rate per mile of the accepted bid.

The Superintendent of Streets and the Board of Public Works may suspend sweeping on any street or portion of street named in this schedule, when in their judgment such sweeping is unnecessary; they may also order any street or portion of street not included therein, cleaned to correspond with the schedule for sweeping of that locality.

The contractor will be required to comply with such regulations governing the work as the Superintendent of Public Streets and the Board of Public Works may provide, and all work must be done between the hours of 6 o'clock P. M. and 6 A. M., unless by special permit of the Superintendent of Streets.

Where it is specified that the streets or parts of streets shall be swept so many times per month, it must be understood that they shall be swept at regular intervals during the month, to be designated by the Superintendent of streets.

The street sweepings taken from the streets to be deposited at the dumps at the S. E. cor. of Adeline and Fifth streets.

The contractor shall be liable for and forfeit to the city the sum of two dollars for each and every load of street sweepings that is otherwise disposed of and not dumped at the place designated.

The said amount or amounts so forfeited for a non-compliance with the specifications in this respect, to be deducted each month from the bill rendered for the work performed.

Notice.—Bidders will estimate and state a price for which they will sweep and clean each lineal mile of streets, in accordance with the specifications, with the distinct understanding that the board reserves the right to reject all bids, if the public good require.

Streets to be swept eight times each month:

Broadway, Wharf to Eighth, 2240 feet.
Eighth, Franklin to Washington, 710 feet.
Franklin, Seventh to Fourteenth, 1850 feet.
Ninth, Broadway to Washington, 320 feet.

All bids must be made upon the blank forms of the board; which will be furnished upon application, by the Secretary.

All bids must be accompanied by a check certified by some responsible bank, drawn on or before the 1st day of July, 1890, made payable to the order of J. M. Brady, Clerk of the Council, for $100, which check shall be forfeited to the City of Oakland should the bidder receiving the award fail within ten days to enter into a contract and furnish a good and sufficient bond in a sum not to exceed $200 for the faithful performance of the same.

By order of
THE BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS.
C. L. DAM, Secretary.

Notice of Street Work.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT ON the 12th day of June, A. D. 1890, the City Council of the City of Oakland, passed Resolution of Intention number 15,018 to order the following street work to be done, viz.: That Elm street and Hawthorne avenue, from the south line of Plymouth avenue to the center line of Hawthorne avenue, thence westerly along Hawthorne avenue to the sewer in center of Telegraph avenue, be sewered with a vitrified ironstone pipe, and have brick and iron ventilating manholes and Y branches constructed thereon.

For further particulars, reference is hereby made to said resolution and specifications for sewer work on file in the office of the City Clerk of the City of Oakland. This notice shall be published for 6 days in THE OAKLAND DAILY EVENING TRIBUNE, being the newspaper designated by said City Council for such publication.

EACH SIDE FIRM.

A Strike on Monday Seems Inevitable.

CARPENTERS INSTRUCTED HOW TO ACT.

The Builders Will Resist the Demands of Their Workmen--A Contractor's Letter.

The carpenters and their employers, the contractors, are stouts, and neither side seems willing to recede from the position it has taken.

The contractors and builders held another meeting last night. No new action was taken, and they did not change their position. Further than this they will not say except that they reiterate their declarations heretofore made.

The carpenters are not idle. They are very busily at work, and say that they are not going to change their position any more than the front actors.

They are also talking of engaging in the contracting business themselves, and there are many "boss" carpenters in the union. They announce their intention to form a company among themselves to do the work of the contractors. As yet, however, no definite steps have been taken, but, should the strike occur on Monday, they may carry out their intention.

It is generally believed among business men that there would be some hard times if there should be a strike.

The following order has been issued, showing that the carpenters still stand to their former determination:

NOTICE TO CARPENTERS.

All union carpenters are hereby notified that after today, (Saturday) June 21st, 1890, they are expected to demand the same wages of their employer as they received for similar work prior to May 1st, 1890, and should your employer refuse to accede to this demand you are hereby ordered to quit work. This action has been ordered by the union by unanimous vote at the regular meeting held Monday evening, June 16th, 1890. You are expected to prove your loyalty to your obligation by rendering obedience to this order.

By order of the Executive Committee.

WM. CHALMERS, Secretary.

W. Winnie, of the Builders' Association, sent the following:

EDITOR TRIBUNE: In your issue of Thursday, 19th inst., I read what the secretary of the Executive Committee of the Carpenters' Union claims to present as a true, fair, and impartial statement of the state of affairs, as between the union and the Builders' Association. With your permission, I desire, as a member of the Builders' Association, to reply to Mr. Chalmers's claims as regarding a fair and impartial statement of matters relating to the eight hours and the wage question, as well as to the action taken by the Builders' Association in reference thereto.

You say, Mr. Chalmers, that you (we) tacitly agreed to accept eight hours' pay for eight hours' work, and for the future to let the wages be regulated by the law of supply and demand. The term "future," as applied in connection with the eight hours' pay, is to my mind, of an indefinite quantity. It may mean tomorrow, or as long as your imagination chooses to make it. With you it was intended the near future, or tomorrow, for no sooner had the contractors conceded the eight hours, than some of your men began to clamor for more pay, some did actually quit, and more threatened to unless their wages were increased.

You state, "Soon after this action by the union," etc. What do you mean by that? As I understand it, your union took no action about wages, but as individuals you tacitly agreed to take a reduction.

"Soon after this action by the union the builders formed an association and granted the eight hours on the basis of eight hours' pay." Correct, and according to your say so, everything went along lovely. The builders, realizing the instability of promises of this kind, and in order to protect the members of the Association, did, on their second meeting, pass the following resolution, No. 3. "Resolved, That any employe leaving his employer on account of a reduction of wages to the eight-hour standard, viz., pro rata for nine hours, be not employed at any higher rate of wages by any other member of the association." Do you see anything so outrageously wrong in this that you should seek to impress upon the public mind that we were trying to black-list and boycott you?

It simply means self-protection to members of the association, especially to those having a large amount of work on hand at the time we passed it. We wanted it understood among ourselves that we would not hire any member's men away from him by offering increased wages, and, in order to make it effective, the members had to post one another through their secretary.

By the way, it was tacitly understood by the members that it was but a temporary measure and not to extend beyond the time required to complete what work there was on hand.

You don't seem to take kindly to this resolution of ours. It suits us first rate, that's what. But then you say that the contractors were notified six months prior to the 1st of May that on and after that date eight hours would constitute a day's work. I admit we had some premonitions of that sort. A wanting of some such contemplated movement. I, for one, regarded it with about as much interest as I did some of Mrs. Woodruff's lunatics' prediction of the destruction of Oakland and San Francisco. You might propose to have the earth at some future time and get it, provided no one should kick.

My friend Chalmers, you have got things a little mixed. You don't put things in their chronological order. The resolution, No. 3, which relates to wages, as copied herein, and not heretofore published, and which you claim we did not publish "for fear, probably, of awakening the sympathy of the community in favor of the wage-workers, who comprise our membership, etc." If it suits your purpose to think it was through motives of fear that we had not heretofore published it, you can have it so, but I hardly think that was the reason or any other reason for that matter, except we don't deem expedient to publish everything we say and do.

The resolution, No. 6, published in connection with your other statements, dealing solely with your boycotting resolution prohibiting your members from working with non union men, or "scabs," as you are pleased to denominate them, under a penalty of a fine or expulsion, is the chief and disturbing element underlying the present difficulty. Things went along very smoothly after securing the nine hours, some six years ago, and up to the time you passed your boycotting resolution, compelling every man you come in contact with in working on any building or in any planing mill to join your union, or, in consequence of his refusal to do so, to make it compulsory with your employer to discharge the one non-union man, or you will all quit of your own accord, taking it for granted, as a matter of fact, he will consult his own interest in retaining you (being several in number) and let the other fellow alide, to dig up another job if he can, or else join the union, abridge his freedom of action, leave town, or starve. This is just what your resolution contemplates. You intend that it shall have this effect and none other.

Do you imagine or think you can deceive any intelligent or disinterested person as to the real intent and meaning of your boycotting resolution? I think not. This unmanly, un-American practice, if you please, is certainly not in consonance with the average American idea, which gives man personal freedom of action to decide for himself what may be for his own best interest, either in joining your or any other association without being subjected to the taunts and sneers of those with whom, by reason of following the same business, he is obliged to come in contact. You may think this thing is all right. I do not believe that it is, and I but assert a fact when I tell you that at least fifty per cent of your most intelligent and candid-minded members join with me in the same opinion.

This matter of your members striking on a job because of there being some non-union man, (or "scab," as you see fit to call him,) employed, has got to be very harassing and exasperating to mill-owners, and they have concluded the time has come to call a halt. They are firmly united on this one proposition, and are determined to submit no longer be vexed and bedevilled as they have been, through the result of your arbitrary resolutions.

To the attainment of this—to them—most desirable object, they propose, that every member of the Builders' Association, shall employ one or two good non-union men. Then let the game roll!

I would like to say a few words in regard to your resolution, to take effect on the 1st of August, not to handle any work out of a mill that runs nine hours. This crazy proposition (if I may be allowed the expression) seems to me, could only have emanated from the brains of a lot of cranks. Time I think, will prove the correctness of my observation. W. WINNIE.

THE STORY OF THE ARGONAUTS.

A Philosopher Tries Novel-writing--A "Bread-and-butter" Miss Writes a Book--Tale of a Horse.

THE ARGONAUTS OF CALIFORNIA; being the reminiscences of scenes and incidents that occurred in California in early mining days, by a Pioneer; text and illustrations drawn from life by C. W. Haskins. Published for the Author by Fords, Howard & Hurlbert, New York, 1890.

This is a remarkable narrative of some of the events which occurred during a most remarkable epoch in the history of this State, an epoch which has been lyrically described, and which is still fondly referred to by the survivors of the band who first visited it, under the attraction of the sacra auri fames, as

The days of old,
The days of gold,
The days of '49.

It is a story told in language as simple, and as picturesque, as that in which the immortal "Truthful James, of Table Mountain," told of the breaking up of the scientific society on the Stanislow, and has the rare merit which the tale of the Fall of Troy, as rehearsed to Queen Dido, had, of being narrated by one who not only saw but "was a great part" of the story he tells.

It is, in every sense, "a plain, unvarnished tale," which Mr. Haskins unfolds. There is no attempt at rhetorical elaboration or the adoption of an ornate style, such as is not unfrequently affected by writers who attempt to look back through the vista of forty years and depict the events of what will always be the most romantic period of the history of California. In fact, Mr. Haskins keeps a tight rein on his imagination, both in the text and in the illustrations, and the result is, that he exhibits a great deal of the clearness of outline and accuracy of detail, though, possibly, little of the delicacy of touch which characterized the skeleton steel engravings which Flaxman furnished to illustrate Pope's "Homer," and other notable epics, about the close of the last century. The drawing of the pictures may not be what the hypercritical would call artistic, but they are none the less, but rather all the more, striking and picturesque.

The author begins at the beginning. His story opens with the incident of his meeting in New Bedford, Mass., with a travelled chum of his, and informs him of the startling news of the discovery of gold by a man named Marshall, in California; of the spread all over the country of the new epidemic known as "the gold fever," and of his own more-than-half-formed resolution to take passage for the new El Dorado in a vessel about to sail for that country by the long and perilous route around the Horn. Finally, on the 1st of April, '49, Mr. Haskins, with about a hundred others, sailed from New Bedford on the clipper America, Captain C. P. Seabury, rounded the dreaded cape in safety, although not without adventure, and entered the Golden Gate on September 20th, landing at the collection of shanties, then known as Yerba Buena, where "the water came up to Montgomery street."

Space will not permit of our giving even an outline of the contents of the volume. It will suffice to indicate their interesting nature by giving the following selections from the captions of the several chapters: Arrival in Hangtown—Sauerkraut—Hard Characters—The First Rat in Hangtown—A Spartan Mother—The First Young Lady—Kit Carson—Lucky Bill—Australian Mike and His Tin Can—The Indian War—The Desperado—Beginning of Fruit Culture and Wine Manufacture in California—The First Church Organization in the Mining Regions—The Stage Road—Hank Monk—Pony Express—The Bean-pot Comet—The Coeur d'Alene Mines.

The illustrations are precisely such as should accompany a work of this sort. They are pioneerish in drawing and perspective, but manifestly, otherwise, correct representations of the scenes depicted as they struck the author-artist at the time and on the spot. An idea of their subjects will be gathered from the following legends written under them: The Bull-whacker—The Dandy Miners—The Frisky Flapjack—Hangtown in '49—"I Shust Nose It"—The Howly Fragment—The Argonaut and His Mule—The Chap Who Insulted a Lady—Big George and the Road Agent—Charley, the Female Stage Driver—The Road Agent Outwitted.

The book, which is very handsomely got up, is, in short, most interesting as a pen-picture of pioneer days, and will be of exceptional historical value to the future historians of the Golden State. Not the least interesting part to the survivors of the mining days—to whom, by the way, the volume is dedicated—will be the list—comprising 35,000 names—of the men who, with pick, shovel, pan or rocker, laid, broad and deep, the firm foundations of the wealth and prosperity of California.

Edward Burton, by Henry Wood, author of "Natural Law in the Business World," etc., Boston, Lee & Shepard, publishers, 1890.

This is an attempt to teach certain new and liberal ideas of Christianity through the medium of an alleged novel. The book is, in fact, a palpable but futile effort to follow the lead given by the author of "Robert Elsmere," and to hang, on the thread of a story, pearls of alleged truth, which the writer either claims to have discovered for himself or to have appropriated (by the right which every man has to lay hold of recognized truth wherever found) out of the treasuries which others have filled.

The main object which the author of "Edward Burton" has set before him is to protest against and refute the dogmas of Presbyterianism—at least those of them, which, having been formulated (though not, by any means, discovered) by John Calvin, have come to be designated, in their essentials, by the term Calvinism—the dogmas which form the stumbling blocks against which a majority of the Presbyterians in this country are, today, breaking their shins, and for the removal of which they are clamoring for the lever of revision of the standards. Decrees, foreordination, predestination and retribution are the principal doctrines which he attacks, and he leads his hero (who is brought up a strict Calvinist), by means of a sickness which is nigh unto death, and the exercise upon him by a fellow student, of an influence which resembles as much that of the Spiritualists as it does that of the Faith-Healers, into a sort of dreamy, sentimental, invertebrate Universalism which is the pet faith of those whom Charles Kingsley very aptly called "the Molluscular Christians." Thereafter, of course, he proceeds to preach, through the pages of a peculiar periodical which he edits, and for which his friend's father very generously puts up the money, those "comfortable things" for which human nature, in all ages and in every clime, have shown such an eager, and, therefore, suspicious appetite.

In leading up to this denouement Mr. Wood demolishes, in the airiest possible manner, by means of dialogues between his characters, the doctrine of evolution, the whole structure of materialism, and, indeed, all the postulates and conclusions of science (pseudo-science, he chooses to call it) that may be construed as in opposition to his own and his hero's peculiar form of belief. It must be admitted that those discussions are, after a fashion, interesting, for they throw no little light on the deep questions which have engaged the thoughts and perplexed the intellects of the greatest minds of this, and the latter half of the last century; but the result, so far as it affects the convictions of the reader, will hardly be found to be satisfactory. At least, it will be a very peculiarly constituted—we had almost said an exceptionally weak and impressible—mind that will become a convert to the vague and unsubstantial belief to which Edward Burton finally gives his adherence. The story, as a story, is of the very flimsiest description. The plot, if plot it can be said to have, is entirely subordinated to the metaphysico-theological dialogues between characters, who, though remarkably commonplace in their station, development, and surroundings, yet talk with a ponderous learning and skill of fence in debate that would be no discredit to the leaders of thought in the various schools of theology and metaphysics. The volume, in short, is a failure as a novel, but, as a treatise on certain lines of thought, it is full of valuable suggestions, which will be found a decided assistance to those—and their number is rapidly increasing in our day—who aspire to do their own thinking.

Trovata. By M. F. Seymour. Rand, McNally & Co., Chicago and New York, 1890.

One has no hesitation, notwithstanding the probably deliberate vagueness of the initials, (so far as their being indicative of the sex of the author goes) in coming to the conclusion, after reading two or three pages of this book, that it is from the pen of a woman, and a very young, inexperienced but exceptionally devoted, woman at that. The story is silly to the verge of inanity. The characters are positively colorless, with the exception, perhaps, of two, Mrs. Bradleigh and her son Clarence, the former a very proud Episcopalian lady with a temper of her own, and the latter a bookish invalid, who, unlike most invalids, is represented as a case-hardened infidel. But even those two end by becoming as entirely of an opposite character and disposition, before they are shuffled off the stage of life by the exigencies of the story, as it is possible to conceive, and the reader is left to wrestle with a vague sense of disappointment because there is no rational or intelligible cause given for the change. One can understand why Agatha and her mother—both weak and shallow natures, yet full of the obstinacy which is not unfrequently found in such natures—should doff one religion and don another at the promptings of a sensual—and therefore, probably mistaken—conception of what is right and true; but, from a man and a woman, whom the author evidently intended to depict as strong characters, and one of whom, at least, is supposed to have possessed a naturally keen and highly cultivated intellect, one is entitled to expect something more substantial in the shape of a motive for conversion—or perversion, if the term should seem preferable—than that ancient and fallacious one, "When the devil was sick, the devil a monk would be."

When in addition to these faults of motif and construction, one finds in the book such gross lapses in English as "luxuriant home," "the need of they two being agreed," "there is a future for you and I together," "the priest whom you said was ready to instruct me," "that luxuriant room" (again), one ceases to be surprised at the silliness of the story, and only continues to wonder that Miss Seymour's guardians (she cannot be out of her teens) ever allowed her to write such rubbish, and that she ever found publishers rash enough to undertake to give it to the world in print. Her bad grammar and flights of ecstatic goody-goo iness are just a shade less tolerable than the comed epithets and sensuous paroxysms of Amelie Rives Chandler, to whose literary names may the immortal gods grant an unbroken and eternal repose.

Black Beauty, His Grooms and Companions; the "Uncle Tom's Cabin" of the Horse. Published by the American Humane Education Society, Boston.

This very excellent little volume is from the pen of an English lady, named Anna Sewell, and it is said that 90,000 copies of it have been sold in Great Britain since its first issue only a short time ago. This is not surprising. The story is a simple and a touching one and details the various cruelties which man, either from ignorance or instinctive brutality, practices on that faithful and willing slave of his will, the horse. "Black Beauty," a well-bred animal of a naturally loving and genule disposition is supposed to tell of the various ups and downs of his experience from colthood to a green old age, and too much cannot be said in praise of the excellent style of the narrative, the intimate acquaintance with horse nature and its needs that is exhibited, and the beautiful sympathy which is shown by the author with the noble animal for whom she speaks. Not only is the book a most interesting one to peruse as a means of whiling away an idle hour, but it imparts a vast amount of information in regard to the habits, training and even diseases of horses, which everyone, who either owns or expects to own a horse, should know. As an appeal for the better treatment of horses and a plea for the exercise of humane forbearance and kindliness toward the useful and harmless among dumb animals, it is a masterly production, and altogether in sympathy with the Ancient Mariner's immortal words:

"He prayeth best who loveth best
All things, both great and small.
For the dear God who loveth us
He made and loveth all."

As indicated in the transcript of the title page given above, the book is republished in this country by the American Humane Education Society, 12 Milk street, Boston, and will be sent to any address, for 20 cents in stamps.

BOOKS AND PATROLMEN.

The Best Officers Do Not Always Pass the Best Examinations.

Chief of Police Tompkins has ordered another change in the police detail. St. Clair Hodgkins, who, for several months, has been in charge of the patrol wagon during the night, will take the beat now patrolled by Officer Thomas White at West Oakland, and the latter will take Officer Hodgkins' place as officer of the patrol wagon.

In speaking of the qualifications of some of the police officers on the beats the Chief of Police said that those officers who passed the best examinations for appointment on the force are generally the poorest police officers. He says there are a number of officers on the force now who are men without book education who are ten times better than some who passed the recent examination with credit.

It is currently reported about the police station, that, a few nights ago, an insane woman discharged a revolver, and an officer, who heard the report, ran away as fast as his legs could carry him, being too frightened at the report of the pistol to arrest the woman, who was captured the next evening, by Officer Aldrich.

The Prospects of the Grain Crop in Eden Township--Prices of Fruit, Dry and Green.

Grain in Eden Township.
Haywards Journal.

While the yield in this valley will be much below former years, still there is now every hope of the grain being plump and of good quality. This is due to the cool weather of the past three or four weeks. In speaking with ex-Supervisor Jensen Tuesday, he reported that there would be about half a crop in the hills, but the grain would be of excellent quality. The threatening weather of late has caused the farmers some anxiety for the hay cut, but we are not alarmed at any deluge just now.

Fruit Prices.
Haywards Journal.

There is a tremendous excitement in the prune market at this time, which has been culminating for some days—in fact, ever since the agents of the buyers of this city have been in the market making purchases for the future. The prices for green fruit on the tree, which started in at a figure below 2 cents per pound, have gradually risen by thirds and quarters, until now the fruit growers are declining 2½ cents and are holding for 2¾ and 3 cents. Prunes costing 2, 2¼ or 2½ cents a pound on the trees, on a basis of three pounds of green fruit to one pound of dried, will thus cost the buyer 6 to 6¾, and 7½ cents a pound, to which the cost of drying, picking, packing and transportation is to be added.

RUSSELL'S RIDE.

A Thrilling Experience With a Load of Hay.
Haywards Journal.

Frank Lake was in East Oakland Tuesday morning, and witnessed a peculiar runaway near Twenty-third avenue. A two-horse team was coming down the street, when a fish peddler drove along, and just as he passed the team he struck his big gong, and the noise scared the horses and away they went. It is no easy matter to hold a team with the driver perched on top of three tiers of baled straw, and Mr. Lake watched the runaway team for some distance. Finally a bale of straw toppled off here and there, and all of a sudden over went the driver with a couple of bales on top of him and it looked as though he was badly injured, but he was soon on his feet and chasing the runaways. The team, relieved of the heavy load, continued its flight until it collided with a telegraph pole, and stopped short. Up to that time Mr. Lake did not know who the driver was, but meeting Charles Proctor, who was surveying near the scene of the accident, he was surprised to learn that the driver was our townsman, Fred Russell, and he at once drove down to where he was. Fred luckily escaped injury, but he had quite a close call. He had quite a thrilling ride, that was enough to cause his hair to stand erect. Fred made a good dicker for the straw where it dropped, and drove home that evening, very thankful that he was alive and no bones broken.

Will Smalley Tells How They Do It in Chicago.
Haywards Journal.

Will Smalley, our baseball player, is quite an observing young man, and he has a great opportunity to see everything worth seeing during his trip throughout the East. While in Chicago lately he took a trip around among the fruit houses, and watched them sell a carload of Haywards and San Lorenzo fruit. Accompanying the letter was the catalogue of sales of fruit of recent date, that show prices nothing gilt-edged. He sends the following letter to his father under date of June 11th:

"I sent you yesterday an account of sales of the fruit from Haywards by Earle Brothers, and also San Jose and Vacaville fruit by Porter Brothers. I got acquainted with one of Porter Brothers' clerks and he took me around to the different salesrooms. It just happened that a Hayward's car was about to be sold. Porter Brothers had the first auction. The fruit that they handled yesterday was in much better shape than the Haywards fruit. Anderson's fruit from San Jose arrived in first class shape. I saw the fruit in the car and the boxes were nailed solid. The fruit didn't settle at all. After the Porter Brothers' sale we went to Earle Bros. The way they handle fruit is very poor. They pile them together in any shape and throw the boxes around. I never saw such handling. Porter Bros. handle fruit twice as careful. The condition that some of the Homer fruit arrived, was terrible. There was six boxes sold at ten cents per box. In some of his boxes you couldn't see the cherries on account of mildew. Some of Clint King's arrived in good shape. Yours looked first rate, but the others, looking poor, seemed to hurt the sale of them all. Some of Milo Knox's boxes were all stained from the cherries. I didn't see the cherries in the car, but they looked as if they had been shaken up a good deal. Porter Bros. don't believe in shipping in ice cars, while Earle Bros. do. Porter Bros. claim when the cherries are taken out of the car, and the hot air strikes them, they wilt. Earle Bros. say the cherries are not out of car long enough to do any damage. When the cherries arrive in Chicago they have a coat of frost on them from the ice. The market here is pretty well crowded with fruits and vegetables. Bananas, oranges, and pineapples and berries are plentiful."

It is generally conceded, however, that the unprecedented rain this spring has had its effect on the staying qualities of the cherry in being forwarded East, still, the other cars of cherries shipped from here reached Chicago in good condition.

Haywards.
Journal.

Mrs. Harold Wandesforde and three children of Eureka are visiting at the residence of J. B. Wandesforde.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hayward were presented with a hand-some silver tea service by the guests of the Haywards hotel Tuesday evening, as a mark of their appreciation for many acts of kindness extended to them. Mr. Mitchell made a neat presentation speech, to which Mrs. Hayward feelingly responded.

A fine arc light has been placed in front of Lee & Sylvia's store on Calhoun street, and is called a "syndicate" light. That is, a number of the business men in that vicinity joined together and paid their proportion of the cost. The enterprising gentlemen doing this good are; Dr. Hood, F. Mitchell, the boot and shoe man; Lee & Sylvia, and H. Sorenson.

Haywards has abundant material for a good baseball nine, and we see no reason why an exciting contest cannot be arranged every Sunday with outside clubs. The boys have lately taken hold of the subject by forming a nine and electing J. D Smalley manager. The new club comprises the following members: George Smalley, Powell, Rob Long, Strobel, Hahn, Rayer, Marshall, Garcia, Colestock, Emery.

TRACING KYE'S STEPS.

Wednesday Night in Oakland and Thursday in Lathrop.

The Contra Costa "Railroad Magnate" Left His Valises Where He Owes a Bill for Lodging.

The disappearance of William Kye, "the railroad magnate," continues to be the talk in West Oakland, where the man resided and was well known. Some people in that section of the city are of the opinion that Kye was demented, while others hold to the idea that some one must have been behind him in his mysterious railroad operations in Contra Costa County.

It has been reported that Kye was in Lathrop on Wednesday, but the interview held with Mrs. Blaikie of 1720 Chase street, where Kye resided, dissipates any such idea. She said: "Kye came home on Wednesday evening as usual, and on Thursday morning took his heavy overcoat and left the place, saying he intended to go out to collect some money. I supposed he was going to his work as usual. The first I knew of his troubles and his leaving was last night, when I saw the account in the papers. I was as surprised as anyone, as he owes me for four months' board. He has left his trunk and valises but their contents are of no use to me. He never spoke to me about his railroad schemes, but last winter he did mention something about his going to build a railroad, but we only laughed and thought it was a joke, as he had no money and was only receiving a salary as brakeman.

Mrs. Blaikie thinks the man was honest and that he would send her the money due her for board. It seems an engineer on the road named Wheeler called several times Thursday to see Kye, and was very much disappointed at not finding him. The nature of his visit was not ascertained by Mrs. Blaikie.

A dispatch from Lathrop says he was in that place on Thursday night, but was very reticent as to his destination. He took dinner at the Banner House, and intimated to acquaintances that he intended staying over, but he soon after disappeared. He is apparently broke, and it is thought he is heading for Stockton, where he has friends. An attempt was made to get him to talk about his affairs, but he would only say that some one was trying to find out what he was doing.

A DISASTROUS TEST.

The Little Cable Road at Laundry Farm Demoralized.

The crusher at the Laundry Farm quarry, from which rock will be obtained for paving Pacific avenue, Alameda, is in position and ready for work. Yesterday a test was made of the cable road which will transport the rock from the quarry on the hillside to the quarry below, and it proved disastrous.

The cars are moved by an endless chain. The brakes of the first loaded car were not set tight enough to hold it. The car went down the hillside at an amazing rate of speed, and at the curve struck an empty car, hurling it from the track. The cable snapped, and the road was demoralized. Repairs are now in progress, and it is expected that operations will be resumed by next Monday.

M. B. CURTIS'S COMPANY IN TROUBLE

Mr. Howell's Comments on Gentlemen Trained to a Profound Misconception of Their Office.

The American drama is growing into maturity, Mr. Howells thinks, in spite of the "unwearied perseverance" of the critics "in undervaluing whatever was native or novel in the efforts of our playwrights." Such captious fellows as these Mr. Howells cannot abide. "We have long had," he says of them, "a large body of gentlemen trained to a profound misconception of their office, and deeply grounded in a traditional ignorance of the essence and nature of the drama, writing every night about the theatres, and more and more believing in themselves and their ideal of what a play ought to be, without reference to what life was. The criticisms which they have thus produced between churchyard yawning and cock-crowing, with the advantages of a foreman behind and a night editor before, hurrying them up for their copy, have been such as must surprise the sympathetic witness by their uniform confidence and severity, but they have not, in great measure, carried, even to the most generous comparison, the evidences of fitness for the censorship assumed."

In the face of such dreadful incapacity as this, nothing is left to Mr. Howells but to give the critics a lesson in the new criticism, although he evidently has slender hopes of their taking it to heart. Probably many of them have seen more plays in a year than Mr. Howells has seen in a lifetime. Their familiarity with the Greek dramatists, with the Elizabethans and Georgians in our own literature, with the French drama from Moliere to Sardou, is likely to be quite as great as his. It might even be fair to assume that some of them have had opportunities of education and culture which he has not. Nevertheless, here is Mr. Howells ready, with cheerful confidence, to teach them the rudiments of their profession. They ought to be exceedingly obliged to him.—Edward Fuller in Dramatic Mirror.

The Round of the Play Houses.

Wilson Barrett, the tragedian, will play at the Oakland Theatre on Thursday and Friday evenings of next week, Hamlet the former evening and Silver King the latter evening.

San Francisco dudedom has seen Florence St. John and the other gaiety burlesques and is not enthusiastic. The humor is British, punning and phlegmatic. The girls are British, big and not dainty. But they can sing and dance pretty well, better than the usual Evangeline crowd, and everybody ought to see them anyhow.

At the California Theatre The Old Homestead is playing without Denman Thompson in the cast.

At the Bush Street A Long Lane, or Pine Meadow.

Peter Baker's comedy, Chris and Lena at the Alcazar last week.

Not a very attractive list is it?

Splinters From the Boards.

Edwin Booth has aged rapidly during the last two years. His features have grown heavy and wrinkled and he looks much older than he is.

The most recent accessions to the Fay Templeton Comic Opera Burlesque Company are Toma Hanlon and Madge Yorke. Miss Templeton will sail for Europe on La Bretagne this month.

Pauline Hall, prima donna and bicyclist, says she intends to make the trip from Baltimore to New York on her steel steed before the snow flies. And a reporter of the Baltimore American believes that she will.

The Minstrel, or The Guarded Unguarded, is the title of a new light opera. The libretto is by Robert G. Mackaye and the music by Harry S. Fonda. The former was until lately critic of the San Francisco News-Letter.

Ivanhoe is really the subject of Sir Arthur Sullivan's next opera. The role of the hero will be filled by Ben Davies. W. S. Gilbert is also at work on a new comic opera which he will produce in the Autumn at the Lyric Theatre.

Lew Dockstader made a vigorous, but ineffectual, kick against walking in the street parades of Primrose and West's Minstrels, but the edict had gone forth, and he proved that he is made of right stuff by the way he shouldered a black-lettered transparency labeled, "We Are The People," and headed the company, while the band played "I Cannot Sing the Old Songs."

The number of farewell dinners given to Toole, the very popular English comedian, in London, was remarkable. The actresses, being denied admission to the dinner given him by his professional brothers, organized one for themselves, and carried it out with great magnificence, Mr. Toole being the only man present. Ellen Terry presided.

During the last week of its run at the Star Theater, The Shatchen drew just $1077, but to keep a couple of prosperity, $20,000 worth of tickets were given away during the last two weeks. The authors, the stars and the managers are all at loggerheads, and within the week the lawyers will have the case in hand. Lewis Morrison goes out again with Faust next season. M. B. Curtis returns to his California ranch, ahead about $4000. Manager McKenney is in the soup to the extent of $6000, and the play goes back to the trunk of the authors.—Dunlop's Stage News.

The quarrel over The Shatchen still goes on at fever heat and Mr. M. B. Curtis has the winning end of it. By his contract with Curtis, Lewis Morrison agreed to play in nothing but The Shatchen for the whole of the coming season. Not having made much of a hit individually, Morrison would now like to get out of it and resume his road tour with Faust. But Curtis, who did make a hit in The Shatchen, does not see it in this light, and insists that Morrison keep his agreement or pay a good round sum to break it. Morrison is rich and can well afford the price, especially as he forced Curtis to come here and make big sacrifices in his California land ventures.—New York Morning Journal.

The late Lord Beaconsfield once said of the Marquis de Leuville, that he (Leuville) had created for himself more hatred, envy and malice on account of his talents, and social popularity than was engendered by the official holding the post of First Lord of the Bed-chamber. Every story has two sides to it, and although for a time, the Princess Theater syndicate seemed to be on top, it has now become the turn of de Leuville to have his innings. The trouble arose in the first instance by an alleged violation of good taste on the part of handsome Jack Barnes, in making up a stage villain as a caricature of de Leuville. The evidence adduced in the sub-sequent legal proceedings go to show that the Marquis took a very firm, but withal, dignified course, by appealing to the Lord-Chamberlain, in whom is vested the veto of public performances. Now that the whole affair has been ventilated in the fierce light of public opinion, the de Leuville party has gained many high-classed adherents and sympathizers, which is evidenced by the fact that a few weeks ago de Leuville was presented with an illuminated address of sympathy and support signed by over three thousand members of various lodges. One fact in connection with this much-talked-of character is, that while he is undoubtedly eccentric, no one denies the genius of his poems and songs, and his publishers can give evidence of his financial success.

Here is a list of the real and assumed names of prominent professional people: May Davenport, Mrs. William Seymour; Helen Dayne, Mrs. George Purdy; Albina De Mer, Mrs. M. B. Somebody Tells Somebody.

Dr. B. Hamlin, of Lemore, Cal., says a few dozen bottles of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy which he sold there created such a demand for the remedy that he could not well get along without it. No one can fully appreciate the real value of this remedy until they have given it a trial. Those who use it find it so much superior to any other remedy they have ever tried that they recomend to their friends, and that is what makes it so popular. For sale by Kirkland & Trowbridge.

—BY THE—

Royal Baking Powder Co.

"At a meeting of the State Board of Health it was Resolved, That the advertisement of the Royal Baking Powder Company quoting the State Board of Health of New York as recommending, through one of its analysts, its purity, etc., is a misrepresentation. In no case does the State Board of Health, or its representatives, cause such examination to be made with a view of recommending particular products."

ALFRED L. CARROLL, M. D., Sec'y.

Nothing better than deception can be expected from a company who will foist upon the public as "absolutely pure" a food preparation which has as its basis that harsh caustic chemical, carbonate of ammonia. The origin of ammonia is filth, decomposed animal and vegetable matter, and yet it is being used as a leavening power in the Royal Baking Powder.

It was decided by the NATIONAL FOOD ANALYSTS that DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER was the one they could recommend to general family use, being free from Ammonia, Alum, Lime and all drug taint.

THE SENIORS' DAY.

Last Class Meeting Before Commencement.

SUNNY FREAKS IN COED CANYON.

Formal Exercises Conducted This Morning in the Gymnasium. A Hop on Monday.

Today the class of '90 occupies the attention of the college world. After our brilliant years the class meets, for the last time before graduation, to receive and entertain its friends. Today, also, witnessed the transformation from the freshman state to the complete sophomorical dignity, and, for the nonce, the freshman has not a single champion. The seniors had made active preparations for their Class Day, determined, as is their custom, not to be outdone, but to pose as a model for future classes. In their efforts for an exceedingly fine celebration they succeeded today. The gymnasium had been completely transformed by an endless profusion of flowers, ferns, and evergreens, arranged by the deft fingers of the seven peerless senior young ladies. From aloft drooped the national and the class colors. The stage was banked with roses, and on the wall at the rear appeared the class motto in crimson, Post Perfidem Primum.

In the programmes, the class surpassed all its predecessors. These were the work of Drake, of Philadelphia. The programme was in book form; upon the inside of the cover appeared a handsome steel engraving of the class crest; within were the order of exercises and a list of the members of the class. It is a beautiful souvenir of the occasion.

At 10:30 o'clock the gymnasium was comfortably filled, and, after an overture by Brandt's Orchestra, J. D. Rideout, President of the Day, made a few introductory remarks. The first speaker of the day was James A. Carey. The subject of his oration was "The Value of American College Education." He was followed by Miss Ada Ramsdell, with an essay entitled "Is the Day of the Epic Past?" and by Leslie R. Hewitt, who spoke upon "University and Student in the Olden Time."

Miss Ada Ramsdell.

The thoughtful essay of Miss Ada Ramsdell upon epic poetry is summarized as follows:

What distinguishes the epic from all other poetry? Its primary distinction that in it the whole idea is universal. Every epic thought should be wrought out of elements national, social, and human, founded upon the actions, thoughts, and emotions which universalize humanity. To reconcile the known with the unknown, the finite with the infinite, and to confine this within practical limits, is the work of the epic artist.

The epic demands some remarkable occurrence—an adventure. It is not made up of sentences and sentiments; it is not characters existing by themselves alone, that constitutes the epic agent. It delights in times of high achievements, of enthusiastic and peculiar manners—in strong contrasts of station, character, and scene—in the dark, the bright, and the marvellous. Almost all the epic poets have founded their work on Homer; and he was national, his was a poem of the people. Nor was he the first to speak of the Trojan war. He had his predecessors as well as his successors. His tales are the veritable records of humanity. For what are the natures and tales of 3000 years ago—the idle syllables which the pedant calls history? No, the epic and history have fled from each other like light from darkness. Mediocrity is only more common than success, and complete failure is the rule. For few would attempt such a mighty task, except a great genius or a great fool.

The question here arises, are any of the nations of today likely to produce an epic embodying the spirit of the moderns—a something more than a historic reflection of the past? To a Milton or a Dante nothing is impossible. It is the current opinion in this age of science, this age of prose, that an Iliad or an Odyssey would find but few admirers. Some conceive the flame has been extinguished. Let us say rather that it is smouldering. The heretofore marvelous has died out and perhaps taken to explaining everything on philosophical and scientific principles. There is no room here for poetry. Truth and fiction blended, in Homeric times, supplied the ancients with abundant material for the epic. But do they harmonize with the spirit of our age? The age of simple belief is past, and it has given place to a spirit of critical inquiry and reasoning which demands the evidence of facts.

The novel, with its plainer style and wider field of adventures, has now in a great measure superseded the ancient modes of epic poetry. For the epos the complex relations of social life are not fitted. Were it necessarily for the times and of the times we might righteously despair of any further light. We are too familiar with the commonplaces of existence. I think we can safely say that there can be no epic of today; but of that wider subject, is the day of the epic past? no such pessimistic view is necessary.

Any well handled national subject could not very well fail to arouse attention. The mellowing influence of time is necessary to give it the peculiar power it possesses. Do you want a national subject? From the earliest times of American independence to the present what mighty interests are there in the destiny of nations? What was the siege of Troy to Hellenic art? Such may be our conflict of '61 to American art. We all know Homer grasped real life but what would have been the status of Homeridae had he not surveyed the whole field of Olympus as well? Life and its littlenesses were wrapped up in the enveloping cloud of eternity. But Homer's faith is not the faith of today.

As science progresses and develops, it may be that a scientific poem still be squired, could such a spirit be breathed into it so as to leave not a hint of the didactic. If such a poem be treated with high imagination and art, the epic would reach a state hitherto unprecedented.

Then, not a recount of the glories of the ancients, not the conflicts between gods and men, will be the heme. An entirely new class of poets, born and educated in the new thought, not impressed with the frivolities of today, will spring into existence, and the smouldering flame will burst into fire—the epic will be no longer silent.

The dazzling heights of art, philosophy and science will be scaled, some product of the Bellamistic Utopia will spring into the arena where the master spirits of all ages have contested their intellectual might. Then, and not till then, will be realized the fact that the day of the epic is not past, but to come.

Leslie R. Hewitt.

The morning exercises closed with oration by Leslie R. Hewitt, who spoke as follows upon "University and Student in the Olden Time:"

The serious student is naturally inclined to be a little speculative. His whole training has taught him to measure his chances thoughtfully and when he finds himself face to face with real life in the very practical world, he cannot but wonder what the future has in store for him. We too are today in this receptive mood, we cannot help ourselves if we would. This day a revolution has agitated our little community, transforming its surface completely. The Freshman of yesterday today scorns the name. He has now become a man, for he wears the mortar board and gown; the Sophomore, who 12 hours since was no doubt hunting victims for a tossing blanket, this morning is oppressed with the dignity of a white ribbon; our Juniors are Seniors, and we—nobody at all.

Appreciation of what bygone days and acquaintance with their history, have done for us is, certainly, essential, that we may fulfill our obligations to the present, and that we, in turn, may build well for the future.

Each age has its ideal student character; the scriptures tell us of the Scribes, laborious copyists, scrupulous expounders of the Jewish law; in Athens, we see the youth of the city listening to the wisest of the seven; the dark ages could not entirely extinguish the lamp of knowledge.

It would be both profitable and entertaining as a matter of research to trace the use and growth of the mediæval universities; it was a movement quite as peculiar to the thirteenth century as chivalry was to the tenth. Both were outgrowths of the fantastic enthusiasm, which formed on the surface of an unsettled, but, as yet, not fully self-conscious social life, struggling to arouse itself. The famous trinity—Oxford, Bologna, and Paris—were soon followed by a crowd of imitators. There is a halo of distance about the early life of these ancient universities. When the tireless missionaries of the church spread the sway of Christianity over the northern and western races of Europe, magnificent Gothic cathedrals in time rose heavenward to mark the path of their labors and to crown their spiritual triumph. But if converts were made they must be kept; and tans, by the side of splendid churches were planted monastic schools. The monks who presided over these schools were fed on a constant diet of a wretched jargon called monk Latin, varied with a few chants and hymns of church music, and a liberal allowance of corporeal punishment. It is from these adjuncts of the mediæval sanctuary that we derive the great descent of the great universities. The typical university of this day held a proud position; she was a self-governing republic, and indignantly resented any interference within her domain. Her title was derived from the Roman See. Tne men of letters were a privileged guild.

The speaker then proceeded at length to consider the characteristics of the mediæval university, its scope and the method and course of instruction. The doctor of the period was a subtle scholastic. Of Greek he was profoundly ignorant, but Latin was his delight, and he found most learnedly dispute in the proposition whether ego amo or ego amari was or was not a Ciceronian phrase. Natural sciences he never heard of. Medicine he despised as a jungle of the Saracens. Mathematics was not worthy of his very serious attention. He troubled himself very little about original thought, but was a true schoolman. His energies were spent in endless and idle speculation on philosophical or logical quibbles. All vigor of thought was blighted by the unhealthy mildew of the scholastic system. The speaker then gave an entertaining picture of student life 400 years ago.

In conclusion he said there is not much in this view of a phase of the olden time to cause pleasant reflection. On the whole it is a sad picture. But it is not without its usefulness to us, for it may teach us that we as students also have abundant reasons to be thankful for the blessings of our own day. And let us not forget that while our predecessors can only be judged by their conduct according to what light they had, we should make very sure of living up to our own. Student life today is, in its way, as unique, as full of meaning for us, as that which I have attempted to recall was, in the by-gone mediæval time, for our fellows of that distant day.

Formerly it was customary when the doctor conferred upon the student his degree, to pledge him to be loyal to his alma mater, above all things else, and always to defend the honor of her name. Today the solemn obligation is needless, and if silently taken it is sealed by a love which strikes deep in our hearts.

Classmates, the life which closes for us today I will leave with but a single thought. The class union we have formed together will not be broken, though its members be separated; it rests upon the sure foundation of college friendship, which is lasting and true. It cannot be dissolved. Before we turn our faces homeward, each to pursue his individual way, let us linger a moment about the familiar halls, a united band, awaiting the parting benediction of our own beloved alma mater.

The Fun in the Afternoon.

At the conclusion of the exercises the assemblage dispersed, but to meet again at 2:30 under the oaks of "Co-ed" canyon. Chi Psi, Sigma Chi, Beta Theta Pi, Phi Delta Theta, Delta Kappa Epsilon, and Zeta Psi kept open house, serving lunch to their friends.

Promptly at 2:30 o'clock the senior class, to the number of forty-eight, clad in white linen dusters and dilapidated silk hats, and armed with carpet bags, marched on to the scene to the tune of "Chocachelunk," and mounted the platform erected for the occasion. J. D. Rideout, President of the class, then announced H. L. Wilson, historian of the class, as the first speaker. Mr. Wilson gave a brilliant recital of the events of interest of the class during its four years, and of critical points in the college history of individual members.

Miss McNeil, prophet looked into the glass of the future and read the history of the class from the hitherto point of view. The exercises concluded with the dispensation by E. C. Hill.

The Committee of Arrangements consisted of Miss Joe Chapman, L. R. Hewitt, and A. M. Henderson. The Reception Committee was composed of W. L. Rodgers, W. S. Smith, A. L. Street, C. C. Townsend.

On Monday afternoon the Seniors will give a hop in the gymnasium.

Commencement day will be Wednesday, the exercises to be held at 2 o'clock. From 10:30 to 12:30 Wednesday morning, there will be an open air concert on the campus by the Presidio Band.

COLONELS KEEP SECOND PLACE

A Winning from Stockton in a Twelve Inning Game.

Two games of baseball were played yesterday, one at Oakland and one at Sacramento.

The game at Oakland was a poor exhibition of ball on the part of the Stocktons, for they had the game won twice and lost it by stupid playing. San Francisco won by a score of 6 to 4.

The Sacramento game was one of life and dash. Though the Sacramentos hit harder than the Oaklands they lost the game. Oakland bunched the few hits they did make. Pete Meegan, whom the Colonel released, was the umpire and it is said that he gave Oakland the best of it.

The score was as follows:

HAIR ON THE FACE, NECK ARMS OR ANY PART OF THE PERSON
EASILY, QUICKLY AND SAFELY REMOVED WITH

MODENE

DESTROYED BY ACCIDENT. In compounding another preparation, the liquid depilatory was accidentally spilled on the back of the hand, and I am now living evidence of what it will do. The hair was soon entirely removed. We purchased the new discovery and named it MODENE. It is perfectly pure, free from all injurious substances, and guaranteed to be as harmless as water. It is as simple as to wet and use it, and you will be surprised and delighted with the results. It acts mildly but surely. Apply for a few minutes, then wash off and the hair goes with it. It has no superior and no scientific discovery ever obtained such wonderful results. IT CANNOT FAIL. It is clear as thin water, and leaves the skin soft and beautiful. Although a few applications will remove it permanently, the slow growth, such as a beard, or hair on moles, may require two or more applications before all the roots are destroyed. Although a few will be required for each application. Young persons who find an embarrassing growth of hair coming, should use Modene to early destroy its growth.

Recommended by all who have tested its merits—Used by people of refinement.

Gentlemen who do not appreciate nature's gift of a beard, will find a priceless boon in Modene, which does away with shaving. It penetrates the hair follicle, absolutely destroys the life principle, rendering its future growth an utter impossibility. Sent by mail, in safety mailing cases, postage paid, securely sealed from observation, to any address, containing three times as much Modene and full directions for use, on receipt of price, $1.00. Largest quantity ever sent for any one, $2.00, per box. Sold by druggists, or sent by express, private package, on receipt of price. Postage stamps received the same as cash. BE SURE TO MENTION YOUR COUNTY AND THIS PAPER. Address,

No words can describe the wondrous beauty of Master Kavanagh's voice, or the pathos of his singing. He can only be appreciated by being heard. Master Dimond excites equal surprise with his violin and mandolin.

MME. PATTI: "Wonderful! Superb! He is nothing short of marvelous."
BOSTON HERALD: "Is creating a sensation with his wonderful voice, is no less astounding a phrase, great or any vocalist."
WASHINGTON CAPITAL: "Of rare personal beauty, and has a voice of sweetness, purity and power simply phenomenal."
